SARAZEN WINS LATONIA RACE

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky., Oct. 11.—Sarazen won the race here this afternoon. Epinard was second and Mad Play, third. The time was 2:00 4-5.

A golden dawn was greeted today with smiles of appreciation by thoroughbred trainers, officials and thousands of visitors who came here to see the running of the $50,000 added third international special.

The golden dawn meant a perfect day for the running of a stake over a fast, golden path. The winner of the third international would draw down more than $50,000, one of the richest purses ever offered by an American track.

Nine finely trained thoroughbreds champed impatiently at their bits, awaiting the notes of a bugle that would call them to battle for a fortune.

Ten originally were named to start in the third international, but Wise Counsellor, early was withdrawn, leaving nine still to go. Wise Counsellor had the misfortune to spread a hoof while being Earl Sande, who [illegible] only [illegible] assigned just getting the brunt of responsibility for the Rancocas stables on Mad Play.

By 10 a. m. every unreserved seat in the grandstand was taken and from then on the oncoming crowd began filling up the standing room, temporary benches and other points of vantage around the track.

Epinard was made the early favorite in the mutuels. The track handicapper, who has been unusually successful in picking winners this meeting, selected Epinard to win. In honor of the European colt, the French flag was flying from the tall staff on the infield just below Old Glory.

A better day for the race could not have been ordered.

ON W-G-N

Miss Wahneta Swain.

Blue eyes and "blues" fingers—that's "Wahneta." You all know Miss Wahneta Swain, the W-G-N staff accompanist and soloist extraordinary. Wahneta's mother is Mrs Belle H. Swain, who, armed with a degree of bachelor of music from a musical college, started to teach the piano to her daughter when the latter was only three and one-half years of age. So she's been studying now for some years—the exact number is something else again! Wahneta was a member of the famous Corydon Trio of piano, xylophone and marimbaphone, which attained great popularity a year ago on the stage and radio. Then she went on the Orpheum circuit—whole week stands, mind you!—and about this time wrote "Treasure Isle."—P. & A.

Cathedral Loses Game to Wymore

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 11.—Wymore warriors defeated the fleet Cathedral high team of Lincoln by the lopsided score of 39 to 0 here Friday. GIVES REPLY TO A PAPER

DAWES ANSWERS AN OMAHA EDITORIAL IN SPEECH.

Declares There Is Difference in Radicalism of West and That of New York and Chicago.

OMAHA, Oct. 11.—Gen. Charles G. Dawes carried his campaign into Kansas after devoting practically his entire speech last night answering the "wind mill oratory" editorial published in former Senator Hitchcock's democratic newspaper, the Omaha World-Herald, Friday morning.

Dawes, who was greeted by a crowd of 6,000 people who packed the municipal auditorium, spoke but thirty minutes.

The World-Herald editorial characterized Dawes as "setting up a man of straw" in the form of the socialistic bugaboo every morning and "knocking it down every night," and said there was no "red" radicalism in the west.

Declaring that there was a difference between the radicalism of the west and that of downtown New York and West Madison street, Chicago, Dawes insisted that the farmers were being misled by LaFollette.

"The time to stamp out a prairie fire is when it starts," he said.

SAYS VALUATION TOO HIGH

Rock Island Would Have a Third Cut Off the Figure Found by State Board.

A voluminous brief on behalf of the Rock Island railroad was filed Saturday in supreme court in the case where it appealed from the fixing of a valuation of $9,573,000 on its properties in Nebraska for the year 1924. This is the third tax case with the state that it has appealed to the supreme court. It won the first one, covering 1923 taxes, but the board, when it reassembled, did not cut the valuation down sufficiently to meet the ideas of the railroad, and it appealed again in that matter.

The attorneys say that the railroad owners are not desirous of avoiding the payment of their just share of taxation, but that the board, without any logic or proper evidence to support its findings, persists in not only putting it down as worth a lot more than it is, but that it allows the farmers to escape with a 60 per cent valuation based on actual sales and transfers.

The contention of the company is that the entire system is worth 300 millions, and that the property in Nebraska, taking a number of methods of computation, has a maximum value of $8,761,000, while the comparable figures are $6,331,000.

Broadcast Photos and Descriptions of Men Who Were Seen in Nebraska City.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 11.—Postal authorities are seeking Henry W. Donelson, W. F. Davis and Hollis H. Heap in connection with the recent post office robbery case here. Photographs of the trio have been secured and will soon be broadcast over the country with descriptions of the three men.

The thrifs are believed to have driven here in the Packard car previous to the night the post office was robbed of more than $12,000 in stamps and money. For at least twenty-four hours preceding the robbery the men with their car were seen in the city. They had stored their car in a local garage for a time. The garageman believes the photographs that have been secured resemble the men who were at his place of business.

International Bankers to Offer Bonds for German Loan in U. S. Cities.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—With the [illegible] for the $200,000,000 gold marks ($50,000,000) loan to Germany signed and quotas assigned to all the underwriters out of the way, international bankers today prepared for an early issue of the bonds in principal cities of Europe and the United States.

The United States share will be $110,000,000 and has been underwritten by a syndicate of American bankers headed by J. P. Morgan and company. The bonds will be placed on sale in America within a few days, it was understood.

Issue price of the bonds is 92 and they bear 7 per cent interest, maturing in 25 years. The net yield to investors will be approximately 7½ per cent.

WHEELER INTO CALIFORNIA

Hopes to Turn Sentiment in West Against Coolidge and for LaFollette.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler in two addresses here today hoped to lead an attack upon what Coolidge forces claim is a solid republican state. His attack, he hopes, will turn sentiment to LaFollette's advantage.

Wheeler and his party came from Oakland, where last night Wheeler brought Mr. Coolidge to the platform, "by proxy" and hurled at him a barrage of questions regarding administration policies.

Pointing at an empty chair which he declared "contained as much cleverness as there is in the white house," Wheeler declared that what is needed in the executive chair is "not silence but strength."

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11.—The Zeppelin ZR-3 will start its flight to America tomorrow morning at 6 a. m., according to tentative plans announced here this afternoon by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander.

All of the crew and passengers had settled in the ship when Dr. Eckener, flight commander, called off the start because of moisture in the air and hazy weather.

Lifting tests were found unsatisfactory and Eckner estimated the dirigible would be forced to sacrifice four tons of benzine if it ascended due to the heaviness of the atmosphere.

Reports from other sections of Germany indicated clear skies and moderate temperatures.

CITY ATTORNEYS NOT IN DEFAULT

Charles Wilke, Legal Assistant, States That Cowgill Did Not Ask Advice or Assistance.

When Commissioner Cowgill appeared before the state railroad commission Thursday morning to ask cancellation of a lease held by the Pauley Lumber company to 180 feet of Rock Island right-of-way, just north of Twenty-seventh and E street, he was alone of all the city council and unaccompanied by any city attorney.

Saturday morning Charles Wilke, assistant city attorney, had the following to say with regard to the commissioner's individual appearance before Judge Holmes:

"At no time was the legal department of the city requested to present the matter either to the Rock Island or to the state railroad commission, and Commissioner Cowgill did not ask advice regarding his right to trackage on this particular ground."

Mr Cowgill was before the state commission asking that it cancel the lease that the Pauley Lumber company holds to 180 feet of Rock Island right-of-way, and lease the north eighty feet of it so that he may use this, in connection with a triangular piece of ground there that the city owns, as a paving repair yard.

The assistant city attorney denied Saturday that the legal department of the city was not with him as Cowgill informed the state railroad commission Thursday. The simple fact was that the legal department had never been consulted Mr Wilke stated.

KARL MAILAND

University student who was killed in an auto accident near Gretna Friday evening. His home was in Omaha and he was on the way home.

HELD FOR CHICKEN THEFTS

OMAHA, Oct. 11.—Kurt Lambrecht, twenty-three, of Prosser, Neb., was arrested in a Douglas street pool hall yesterday by detectives on a charge of stealing chickens. According to Sheriff C. J. Palmer of Grand Island, Neb., who aided the Omaha detectives in making the arrest, Lambrecht is alleged to have been stealing chickens within a radius of 200 miles of Omaha and hauling them to market in a seven passenger touring car, at the same time posing as owner of a large chicken ranch. Lambrecht is wanted in more than a dozen Nebraska towns, according to Sheriff Palmer, where he is alleged to have operated since his release last April on parole from the state reformatory on a similar charge.

BAD LIGHT WAS CAUSE

DEATH THOUGHT DUE TO DEFECTIVE HEAD LAMPS.

Accident in Which Karl G. Mailand Was Killed, Believed to Have Been Plunge in Darkness.

OMAHA, Oct. 11.—When found wedged between a wrecked automobile and an embankment near Gretna last night with another youth dead beside him, Jesse Fetterman, nineteen, was so dazed his mind slipped back a few hours. He didn't know where he was and couldn't tell how the accident happened. He told rescuers that the dead boy was Russell Hunter, another university student who he had planned previously to make the trip with him. As a result young Hunter's parents made a trip from Omaha expecting to find the lifeless form of their son, only to find that the dead boy was Karl Maitland.

Poor lights are believed to have been the cause of the auto accident Friday night on the D-L-D near Gretna, in which G. Karl Mailand, eighteen-year-old university freshman, of Omaha, was killed. His companion, Jesse Fetterman, also of Omaha, escaped serious injury. The car in which they were riding was a stripped speedster model

The accident occurred as the boys were going down a hill two and one-half miles east of Gretna.

The boys left Lincoln about 5 p. m. for Omaha to spend the week-end with their parents. Mailand was taking a pre-medic course at the university. Both boys were graduated from the Omaha central high school last spring and entered the university this fall. They were pledges of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity.

According to several of the boys at the fraternity house, the car, which the youths had borrowed from Willard Dover, was equipped with lights that had been giving trouble and are believed to have been out of order when the accident occurred.

The boys were found by W. M. MacArthur and N. O. Knutson of Omaha, who were on their way mixed a few minutes after the accident occurred. Ten minutes after the accident occurred Mr MacArthur said that the boys' machine, which had passed him a short time before, was running without lights

Karl Mailand is the son of Mr and Mrs W H Mailand, Wellington Hotel, Omaha. He is survived by his parents and two brothers, Walter C., nineteen, and Homer, nine. The body was returned from Gretna to Omaha by his father. No arrangements for the funeral have yet been made

Because of defective lights on the Ford speedster in which Karl Mailand, Omaha, university freshman, was killed, Russell Hunter was forbidden to drive or ride in a car for ninety days when he appeared in police court last Wednesday morning. The speedster belongs to Willard Dover. Defective

NORTON THE REAL ISSUE

PAUL SAYS TOUCHY SPOT IN FIGHT IS GOVERNORSHIP.

"If You Want to Make Managers for LaFollette Angry, Fight Norton," Says Progressive Chairman.

J. M. Paul, chairman of the state progressive committee, says if you want to make Frank Harrison and C. A. Sorenson mad, attack Norton for governor Mr. Paul, who was in Lincoln Saturday morning, discussed the political work of these gentlemen and the official acts of Secretary of State Pool and the acceptance of the progressive nomination by other democratic candidates in the following statement:

"My attention was called to an article in The Journal headed 'Progressive Plan Nipped.' In commenting on this article I wish to say that the progressive party committee was acting upon the advice of a firm of lawyers in the state whose standing is at least as solid as the firm of Lincoln attorneys who objected to the nomination of LaFollette and Wheeler by the progressive party.

"I do not know where Sorenson got his authority for the statement that it was a scheme of the progressive committee to divide the LaFollette vote I am satisfied that that statement originated in Sorenson's fertile brain.

"The progressive party committee is of the opinion that there will be quite a block of straight progressive ballots cast this election and these votes will, of course be lost to LaFollette and Wheeler unless their names appear as candidates on the progressive ticket. We were acting in good faith. Now of course if LaFollette and Wheeler don't want this nomination they will not accept but it seems to me that Poole could have waited for word from these men. The progressive party seems to be of some consequence in the state otherwise why is it that Bollen, Morehead, Shallenberger, Howard, Spillman, J. J. Thomas and Charley Pool cling so tenaciously to their ill-gotten progressive nominations. These men donate no money to the progressive campaign, they sneer at the acts of the progressive committee. They in no sense affiliate with the party and yet they claim to be our candidates thru nominations they secured thru trickery and fraud.

"It is the opinion of a majority of our committee that the LaFollette organization in Nebraska is more interested in electing Norton than LaFollette."

"PERFECT LOVER" SILENT

Not With Mrs. Hall-Quest at Present and Says Case Is None of Public's Business.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—While search for Mrs. Shirley Hall-Quest and Frederick E. Hart, her "perfect passionate love," has been going on in Minnesota, Hart is living quietly here, it was ascertained today. Mrs. Hall-Quest, however, is in hiding out of the city, Hart stated. He will join her as soon as his own wife, Mrs. Rosamond Hart, of Cincinnati, secures a divorce, he indicated.

Dr. Alfred Lawrence Hall-Quest, a professor at the University of Pittsburgh, gave up Shirley to her "perfect passionate love," by securing a divorce. Dr. Hall-Quest said he did not want to stand in the way of his wife's happiness.

Hart, a quiet little man of about forty-five, is an expert accountant. When Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest disappeared from their love nest in Evanston, Chicago suburb, following publication of the divorce decree, Hart simply moved into Chicago, while Mrs. Hall-Quest left for a secret destination.

"No one has a right to know where Mrs. Hall-Quest has gone," Hart said. "The public should realize that a woman always is to be shielded, and should not be humiliated."

Mrs. Hall-Quest is suffering "intense mental agony," Hart stated.

"This is a lamentable situation, most lamentable," Hart said

Hart said he felt sorry for the aged parents of Mrs. Hall-Quest, who live in Minneapolis. He said he feared the grief engendered by Mrs. Hall-Quest's predicament might cause the serious illness of one or the other of her parents. Hart refused to discuss the case at length, stating it was "none of the public's business."

FREMONT PLAYER IS DEAD

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 11.—An injury in a recent high school football game and an accidental plunge into the Platte river while on a hunting trip were named as the indirect causes of the death of Bernard Farrell, seventeen, son of Mr and Mrs B F Farrell, of Schuyler.

Young Farrell, high school senior, was injured a week ago in a football game. A few days later he fell into the Platte river while hunting ducks. The exposure brought on a severe cold and his strength somewhat sapped by his injury resulted in acute nephritis, that proved fatal.

Farrell was prominent in school affairs and a member of the regular high school football team

Billie Stanfield Kvale.

The sins of the father are visited on the son—but not his virtues. At least such seems to be the case of the son of the Rev. O. J. Kvale, United States congressman from Minnesota, who, campaigning as the "dryest of the drys," defeated the redoubtable A. J. Volstead, father of the dry law. For the son, Alfred J. TRYING FOR BIGGER GAME

COMMISSION DENIES REQUEST OF FARMERS.

Expects to Secure Joint Rate Thru Superior Gateway for Corn Going to Kansas and Oklahoma.

The state railway commission, in an order issued Saturday, declines for the time being to give the Farmers' Union Elevator company of Lawrence the transfer track that it craves. Its elevator is located on the Burlintgon, and it desires a connection there with the Missouri Pacific so that it might be able to advantageously move corn into southern Kansas and Oklahoma.

The commission says, after a discussion of the question, that the preferable procedure is to relieve a situation which appears to be unwarranted is not to secure purely local adjustment that would benefit but one locality, but adjustment over a wider territory.

The carriers should publish joint rates to Oklahoma and southern Kansas consuming territory thru Superior, avoiding thereby the imposition of the sum of the locals on a considerable actual and potential traffic. The commission negotiations to secure this result voluntarily have not made progress, and it has undertaken to present the situation to the tribunal having jurisdiction.

The Burlington declined to put in the transfer track because it was for the benefit alone of the complainant, who wants to avail himself of the terminal facilities at Lawrence to move corn to points local on the Missouri Pacific in Kansas and to points where that carrier has more direct lines with its connections than has the Burlington. It also contends that as the

ERROR WRIT FOR EGBERT

HASTINGS DOCTOR TO BE ADMITTED TO BAIL AT ONCE.

Convicted a Second Time of Murdering His Son-in-Law an Appeal Is Again Filed in Supreme Court.

A writ of error was allowed Saturday by the state supreme court which will have the effect of allowing Judge Blackledge of Hastings to at once admit to bail Dr. C. L. Egbert, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to ten years in prison. On a previous trial Dr. Egbert, after being at liberty for a time on a $10,000 bail, was convicted of second degree murder and given fifteen years. The supreme court set this aside.

The new appeal is based on a large number of errors alleged to have been committed which had the effect of denying him a fair trial. Egbert was charged with murdering his son-in-law, Charles R. Gordon, who had returned to the Egbert home early one morning to get some clothing after he and his wife had been forced to leave it thru disagreements. Dr. Egbert has always contended that the killing was accidental.

In support of the motion for a new trial it is alleged that the information was insufficient to charge a crime under the statutes; that the court erred in not discharging him after the evidence had been adduced; that the court gave erroneous instructions and refused to give proper ones requested by the defense; that the verdict is not sustained by an evidence and that it is contrary to the evidence; that there was error in the admission of certain evidence, particularly the display of the clothing worn by the deceased at the time, and that testimony taken at the former trial was allowed to be read to the jury in this trial.

The presiding judge is also accused of abuse of discretion to the extent of denying a fair trial; that men were allowed to serve on the jury whose statements when being examined justified their release from service; that there was irregularity in the procedure and actions of the county attorney; that there was improper conduct on the part of the state's witnesses, and on the ground of newly-discovered evidence.

The ten year sentence given is the maximum for the offense of manslaughter.

SEIZE BOMBS AND ARMS

Hundred Thousand Rounds of Ammunition Taken in Political Disturbances in Cuba.

HAVANA, Oct. 11.—Six hundred dynamite bombs, 100,000 rounds of ammunition and other war material have been seized at San Jose, De Las Lages, in connection with political disturbances growing out of the presidential campaign, it was learned today.

Simultaneously Gen. Mario Menocal, conservative nominee, issued a manifesto "to the people of Cuba" at Santiago de Cuba charging President Zayas with deliberate hampering of the conservative campaign.

The president has consistently refused to allow the facts surrounding the tragedy at Camaguey last Sunday when eight were killed and many wounded in political rioting, to be made public, Menocal said.

BOY GETS TWENTY YEARS.

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—Judge I. Miles Potter, of the Snyder county court today sentenced Ralph Shadle, farm boy murderer, to not more than twenty years and not less than ten in the eastern penitentiary.

Farm Hand Sues Because Employer Gave Him Drink While He Worked

Back on July 2, 1924, Jennings Lidolph is alleged to have given his hired man, William Gable, a drink. One drink not seeming to suffice, more drinks are claimed to have followed. The twain were engaged in putting up alfalfa hay on the Lidolph farm. The hired man fell off the hay rake and was injured. Saturday he filed a $5,000 suit against his employer because he gave him a drink.

The accusations against Jennings Lidolph in the words of the petition are: "That Jennings Lidolph wrongfully and unlawfully gave to the plaintiff a pint bottle of intoxicating liquor, the exact name, quality and alcoholic proportions of which are unknown to this plaintiff . . . and requested the plaintiff to drink therefrom, and a little later urged on him a second drink and then placed the bottle at the end of one of the windrows with the invitation to drink as often as he wished."

William Gable says in his petition that he took one or two drinks more and "soon after he became sick, dizzy, blind and completely paralyzed from the effects of the liquor, to such an extent that he could not control the team . . . and they ran away."

Gable complains that he was thrown forward from his seat under the horses and rake and that as a result his right index finger was so fractured that it had to be amputated. He also claims that by some unknown agency one of his false teeth was knocked out and the flesh of his face torn from the corner of his mouth, downward for four or five inches. All of which he claims resulted from the wrongful and unlawful acts of his employer.

MISSING

John Szafranski.

The sudden disappearance of John F. Szafranski of Steger, Ill., whose home was burned to the ground last Saturday, after he had received a threatening letter demanding $1,000 or have his family killed, didn't seem so mysterious after authorities finished their investigation October 7. After several hours of digging over the ruins of the fire the police failed to find any trace of Szafranski's body. It was first believed that the writer of the letter had carried out his threat and set fire to the place when Szafranski refused to pay.—P. & A.

EFFORT TO QUASH SUIT

STATE CLAIMS PROGRESSIVES HAVE NO PLACE IN COUNT.

Attorney Ayres Attacks Validity of Action to Oust Candidates Progressives Do Not Wish to Run.

Judge Lincoln Frost sustained a demurrer filed by the state in district court Saturday afternoon on he grounds that the progressive party had no legal status in court and in so doing assured the candidates of no interference in the coming election. If the case is appealed to the supreme court all that body can do would be to find that the party had a legal status and the case would be remanded to the district court again, according to Judge rFost. By that time the election would be over.

Holding that the state central committee of the Progressive party had no legal status in the state and therefore cannot sue as an individual; that the certificates of nomination presented to Bollen, Pool, Shallenberger, Morehead and Spillman, naming them candidates on the progressive ticket, were not challenged within three days after they were issued; and that the statute gives a candidate the right to run on more than one ticket, George W. Ayres of the attorney general's office demurred to the action brought to oust the candidates, and asked its dismissal at a hearing before district Judge Frost Saturday forenoon.

Charles Epperson, jr., of Clay Center, attorney for the progressives, protested this stand, citing a case fought out in Nebraska courts during the Roosevelt progressive campaign in 1912, to substantiate his holding. Mr. Epperson admitted the statutory right of a candidate to run on two tickets but held this possible only when both parties wanted the candidate.

The progressive party has declared the candidacies for secretary of state, railway commissioner, attorney general, and congressman from the first and fifth districts vacant and now seek to restrain Secretary Pool from placing the names unaffiliated candidates on the progressive ballot.

Judge Frost indicated indecision on the question of the right of the progressive party to appear in court as an individual. The case was continued until Saturday afternoon.

At the primary election Secretary of State Pool received 1,009 votes on the progressive ticket and was nominated over R S. Scofield who received 520 votes.

Floyd L. Bollen was nominated on the progressive ticket for railway commission with 832 votes to his credit as against 597 for Perry J. Green.

Congressman Shallenberger was nominated in the Fifth district, receiving 206 votes as against 109 votes cast for John M. Paul, of Harvard now chairman of the progressive state committee.

Pool, Bollen and Shallenberger were placed in nomination by petitions filed prior to the primary election.

Republican Chairman Declares Fund About $1,095,000.

NO ARBITRARY LIMIT IS SET

Probe Committee to Meet in Chicago by Thursday.

ASKED ABOUT LAFOLLETTE

Butler Asserts He Has No Personal Complaint of Methods Used by Rivals in Campaign for Funds.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. — Official notification that the senate campaign fund investigation committee will meet in Chicago next Wednesday or Thursday was received from Senator Borah, chairman, by William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, today.

Following receipt of the telegram from Borah, Butler declared that contributions to the republican campaign fund have totalled "approximately $1,095,000."

"That was the figure when the contributions were last totalled, about October first," Butler said.

The republican chairman said that there was no "arbitrary limit" on the amount any one contributor could give.

"Of course," he added, "we wouldn't accept any unreasonable gift."

Butler was asked what he thought of the methods used in the LaFollette campaign for funds.

"I have no personal complaint," he said. 'Let the people draw their own conclusions."

PUPILS THREATEN STRIKE

Dever and Public School Officials Trying to Hold up Chicago Walkout.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Mayor Dever and public school officials today sought to head off a strike of school children of the Harper school district, called for Tuesday. At a mass meeting of parents last night, 150 voted in favor of a strike and 19 voted against.

The question at issue is the conversion of the Harper school into a junior high school, thereby forcing the lower grade school children of that district to travel longer distances to other grade schools.

More than 300 pupils attend the Harper school. Parents from schools around that district may call a sympathetic strike. F. F. O'Rourke, chairman of the Harper district parents meeting, said he received assurance of support from other districts.

Mayor Dever was asked by the parents to intervene, but the mayor said he could not interfere with the school board. School board officials insist they will go thru with their plans to make the Harper school a junior high school and depend on the compulsory educational law to force the parents into line.

H. K. Moderwell, president of the board of education, declared there was no reason for the strike vote. He said that portable buildings are being set up at the Harper school and that there would be enough room to take care of the lower grade pupils within a short time.

SCHUERMAN NOT SORRY

NO REGRET BECAUSE OF REINMILLER'S DEATH.

Concerned About His Children But Not Remorseful—Charges Family Broken up by Man He Shot.

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 11.—Edward Scheurman's reaction to the tragedy in which he took a principal part concerned largely the family which he has reared, and regret over the position his family is in.

There are four children — Alvin, 19; Vernon, 14; Leland, 12 and Irene, 8.

"We lost our baby during the influenza," Mr. Scheurman said referring to the epidemic several years ago.

He seemed to think little of the success which he and his family have attained by years of thrift and hard work. Something of a modest pride crept into his references to his two farms, but a deep pride was evident when he spoke of his children.

He was confident that "Alvin" would take care of the farm—their home place. "This farm is one of the best improved in northwestern Gage county. It is a querter section. The second farm is another well improved but smaller tract near Clatonia. It consists of eight acres.

Altho he was born in Ohio, Mr. Scheurman has passed virtually all his life in this county as a member of one of its highly regarded families. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Klosterman, is also a member of a respected family. Their own family circle—with the father, mother and children united by the ties of affection, hard work and the ambition to attain success—has been typical of hundreds of other families in Gage county's happy and contented farm homes.

Schuerman, who is forty-six, said that George Rheinmiller, who was twenty-nine, had on several occasions been driven from the Schuerman home and that both the railway employe and Mrs. Schuerman had been repeatedly warned that their alleged intimacy must cease

They ignored these warning, said the husband and continued what he called their clandestine relationship for two years or more.

"I had thought," said the prisoner yesterday, "that nothing more would happen and I made up my mind to overlook the past in the belief that this would be best for the children's sake. But Tuesday when I was returning to the farm after a brief basence I saw Rheinmiller stealing thru a field. I had seen marks of footsteps in the soft ground of the field before. I don't think I would have done what I did this morning if I hadn't seen him there again Tuesday."

The farmer then spoke quietly of the stress of "worry" under which he said he had labored for several months while trying to avoid the act which he seemed to think was the only "way out"—the killing of Rheinmiller.

Leaving his farm a mile north of DeWitt early yesterday morning Schuerman according to his own story, drove to a point near the Rock Island viaduct near the village, with the intention of finding Rheinmiller while the latter

Come to CHURCH Bring a Friend

A Plain Statement

This church is making an effort to reach the man who has got out of the habit of giving an hour or more of the Sabbath morning to religious purposes. There are some who have wandered afar. The golf iron and the putter have oftentimes taken the place of the hymn book. The soft habit of lying abed or the late breakfast has dulled the T. B. M.'s religious enthusiasm. But the T. B. M. has a soul and it may be worth saving. The church believes this and this church is trying to make its services so rich in spiritual qualities that every man shall be willing to help in saving his own soul. Begin tomorrow a habit which may be fraught with incalculable good.

FEAST OF TABERNACLES

Jewish Festival, Succoth, Begins Sunday at Sundown and Lasts Eight Days.

Succoth, the third of the three great festivals in the Jewish calendar, begins Sunday at sundown and continues for eight days. It commemorates the forty days the children of Israel spent in the wilderness preparing for entrance to the promised land. The children of Israel, during those years dwelt in tents or huts, so that it is the custom during this holiday to build a booth commemorative of the hardships suffered. The second great thought of this festival is one of agriculture. What the American people celebrate annually on the last Thursday in November, the Jewish nation in Palestine celebrated for a full week, commencing the fifteenth day of Tishri.

The most important day of this festival week are the first and eighth, tho orthodox Jews keep the second as well, for special observance in the synagogue. They also add a final prayer service on the ninth day, called Simchas Torah,—rejoicing over the law. This is the happiest day in the religious calender of orthodox Judaism, when the reading of the Pentateuch is concluded amid great joy, and the opening words of Genesis again commenced with equal gladness.

LAFOLLETTE IN THE WEST

MAY CONTINUE TRIP TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

Independent Candidate Told by Representative Nelson That West Inflamed With Progressive Sentiment.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Out where the independent voting begins, where he expects to roll up big majorities from farm and factory, Senator LaFollette today opened his presidential campaign which will take him thru the prairie and mountain states and perhaps to the Pacific coast.

Whether he will go to the coast will be decided today at a conference with Representative John M. Nelson, Wisconsin, chairman of his campaign committee. Altho LaFollette originally planned to include Washington, Oregon and California in his itinerary, the trip is now in doubt.

Five speaking engagements in the mid-west have already been scheduled to follow his address here tonight. They are: Kansas City, October 13; St. Louis, October 14; Des Moines, October 15; Minneapolis or St. Paul, October 16, and Sioux Falls, S. D., October 17.

The independent candidate was told by Nelson who met him in Cincinnati last night, that the west is in flame with progressive sentiment. An intensive drive from now until election day, Nelson said, would clinch the middle and northwestern states for the independent ticket.

LaFollette was given a noisy ovation when he stepped from his train this morning. The senator rode thru the downtown section in the largest political parade held here in years. Headed by a band, hundreds of automobiles placarded with LaFollette-Wheeler banners swept thru the streets. The curb crowds cheered lustily while all traffic in the crowded loop section was halted.

The senator had a special escore of the "fighting Bobs"— a group of bob haired girls. Miss Jane Addams and Clarence Darrow, noted attorney, headed a reception committee.

In outlining his own foreign policy at Cincinnati last night, LaFollette made a bitter attack on the foreign policies of both old parties.

Inferentially defending his own war stand, LaFollette charged that the world war was brought about by "dollar diplomacy." For thirty years before the outbreak of the war, he said, England, France, Germany and Russia were engaged in a commercial war, working thru secret diplomcy and driven on by financial imperialists. He said he was convinced that it was "not a war of unprovoked aggression by one nation."

Unless this "secret diplomacy" is ended, the senator expressed the fear that "imperialistic aggressions" would involve the United States in another war.

As a means of promoting peace and banishing war for all time, LaFollette advocated: Ending secret diplomacy; conscripting wealth in the event war is forced on this country; paying for the war by taxes on wealth instead of selling bonds to the poor; a non-annexation policy and withdrawing the marines from Santo Domingo, Haiti, and central America; a war referendum, except in case of an armed invasion and reduction of armaments.

While advocating peace, LaFollette emphasized that he was "not for peace at any price." There are circumstances under which, he said he would "fight to the last ditch."

CAN YOU SOLVE---

The U. S. Express Robbery

(One of the World's Greatest Detectives Did)

Under the strong light of the lamp in the office of the Winderbaum Silk company Detective John Wilson, of the New York police force, saw that the sheet of paper which he had picked up from the floor bore three small circles and a larger, semi-circular mark outlined in the lightest of light gray.

"The man who made off with that silk last night," Wilson declare, "left his signature just as plainly as if he had signed his name on the back of this sheet of paper. Now I want a list of your employes, with a statement of the length of time they've worked for you. Leave the rest to me and I hope to be able to give some definite information before long," and he was gone before the astonished Winderbaum could ask any further questions.

Shortly before noon, however, the telephone rang and a voice which Winderbaum recognized as that the detective asked if Walter Crane, the checker for the silk company, had come to work that morning.

"No, he called and said that he was confined to bed with a bad cold," Winderbaum replied.

"He's confined, all right," came the voice from the other end of the phone, "but not with a cold. We've got him in a cell here and he has just confessed to having engineered that robbery at your place last night. He was on the point of leaving town when we nabbed him. He had an extra key made from the impression he took of yours the day you left it on your desk for a minute or two and the rest was easy. At least, it would have been if he hadn't been careless enough to step on that sheet of paper and to leave there the impression of one of his rubber heels, an unusual kind that you don't find very often. The minute we found out that he was the only one in the office who wore heels of that make, the rest was easy, for marks of that sort are just as distinctive as fingerprints, if you know how to read them."

The U. S. Express Robbery.

Approximately $25,000 in notes of small denominations were missing from a shipment of the United States Express company which had been put on board the train at Pottstown, Pa., and the robbery was not discovered until the train reached Philadelphia. Blackman, the messenger in charge of the shipment, assumed entire responsibility for the loss for, as he admitted, it was probably because of his carelessness that the package containing the bills had not been placed in the safe, but had been laid to one side.

"I was checking up when we got to Philadelphia," Blackman said, "and it was then that I missed it. I notified the office at once, for there's no use in trying to stall about an affair of this sort."

"Not the least use," agreed James J. Donaghy, later chief of detectives of Philadelphia, who had been assigned to the case. "But that doesn't get the money back. How many stops did you make between Pottstown and Philadelphia?"

"The usual ones—Phoenixville, Norristown and the rest."

"Anything unusual happen along the line?"

"Not a thing. No excitement of any sort."

For two hours Donaghy grilled the messenger, getting him to tell his story over and over again without bringing out the slightest point that would be of assistance in solving the mystery. Then after Blackman had been excused, Donaghy turned to the express officials and said: "His story certainly sounds straight. If he had attempted to frame up some explanation of the matter, I'd be inclined to suspect him. But he didn't. I'll have to do some investigating of my own and I'll let you know if I' mable to develop anything."

Donaghy spent the next few days along the railroad line between Pottstown and Philadelphia, but nowhere could he obtain the slightest clue to the mystery and it was only when he returned to Philadelphia and talked to the letter carrier who served the route on which Blackman lived that the detective felt that he was on the trail at last.

How could a letter carrier know anything about a robbery which took place outside of Philadelphia and which had been carefully kept out of the papers? How could Donaghy find a clue there when all his other investigations had failed?

The answers to these questions will appear on Monday.

SHELL FRAGMENT IS FOUND

Clew Uncovered in the Wreckage of a Stove Explosion at Bennet.

Bennet Sun: How did it get there? Was it the work of some sneak or was it an accident? At any rate the A. L. Merritt household was badly torn up and smoked up last Monday morning. Mr. Merritt was sick and lay abed in an adjoining room. Mrs. Merritt had put some cobs in the stove and had gone up stairs for a moment.

Suddenly there was a terrific explosion in the kitchen. The whole top of the stove was blown off and fire was thrown all over the room. Mrs. Merritt came hurriedly down and it kept her busy putting out the fire for a few minutes. The explosion had driven holes thru the tea kettle and the room was badly smoked and in disorder but no one was hurt. On looking over the debris they found pieces of what appeared to be a shrapnel shell. On one end of the core the word "Hotchkiss" was molded. How it got there is a mystery. Probably it was accidentally lost from some home that had been keeping it as a relic of the war.

Resolutions of regret at the death of Miss Lucy Green, formerly a teacher of English in Lincoln high school, were adopted at the regular meeting of the English department held Thursday, October 9. PLAN FOR ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Nebraska Art Association to Bring Paintings From Chicago Art Institute.

The board of directors of the Nebraska art association met Friday afternoon in the university library and formulated plans for the annual exhibition to be held in January. The purpose of the exhibition will come from the fall exhibition of the Chicago art institute. The secretary was authorized to make definite contracts in this connection.

The board authorized a membership campaign for the coming year. It decided that this campaign should be made at once and asks the cooperation of members in nominating suitable persons for membership to the chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. J. J. Snipes.

The association maintains three grades of members: Stockholders paying an initial fee of $10, with membership dues $5 after the first year, the number of stockholders limited by the constitution to one hundred; contributing members paying an annual fee of $5; and sustaining members who contribute $25 annually. Sustaining memberships were authorized by the board of trustees at a recent meeting.

The association cooperates with the University of Nebraska in bringing a high class exhibition to Lincoln annually. This exhibition is open to the Lincoln public free of charge and has come to be an important factor in Lincoln life. It is visited by all Lincoln school children, under the guidance of the teachers and is attracting statewide attention.

The proceeds of the association are devoted entirely to the purchase of high grade paintings, which remain on exhibition in the university art gallery thruout the year.

FORM NEW POLITICAL CLUB

State University Students Organize to Boost LaFollette-Wheeler Ticket.

A LaFollette-Wheeler club was organized Friday by law students of the University of Nebraska with Franklin J. Potter for president, and J. J. McCarthy of Ponca, as secretary. Both the officers are seniors in the law department. Mr. Franklin's name was on the republican ticket in the spring as a nominee for delegate to the national convention. Mr. McCarthy is the son of a former republican congressman from the Third district. The new club has called a meeting for Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the law building to appoint committees and make other arrangements to have Mr. LaFollette appear before the student body when he comes to Lincoln.

Monday at 8 p. m. at the Temple theatre, William Smoot of Washington, D. C., is expected to speak under the auspices of the LaFollette-Wheeler club and the regional committee. The meeting will be open to the public.

REGARDING COLORED VOTE

National Organizer Looks Into Situation in Nebraska and Ten Other States.

Homer G. Phillips, national organizer in connection with the colored vote was in Lincoln Saturday to survey conditions here. He has eleven states in his territory.

His mission is to keep the colored people in line for President Coolidge, he said.

Mr. Phillips says that while both Dawes and LaFollette have openly opposed the Klan, enemy of negro rights, and Democratic candidates have not, he is sure the colored people will vote with the party.

"President Coolidge can be trusted. He is honest and fearless. He expressed ideas as to fairness and justice to all classes make it appear that the colored people, as a group, should support him."

ENGLISH TO PLAN PLANKS

WILL SELECT CANDIDATE TO OPPOSE LLOYD-GEORGE.

Increase of 20,000,000 Voters Over Old List Is Expected With Interest Running High.

LONDON, Oct. 11. — Definite planks upon which England's general election, October 29, will be fought are to be provided in the manifesto which cabinet members and other labor leaders are expected to issue today.

Other developments of the campaign Britain was most anxiously awaiting were the selection of a candidate to oppose Lloyd-George at Carnarvon, and the forecast coalition of liberals and conservatives in certain districts whereby a triangular fight with the labor candidate may be avoided.

With interest running high a new electoral register is expected to show an increase over the 20,000,000 voters of the old list.

It was said in labor circles today that Prof. A. E. Zimmerman, an expert on foreign affairs, who has been mentioned as the likeliest government candidate to fight Lloyd George, had refused to run and party leaders were looking about for another desirable contestant.

Attorney General Hastings, whose action in dismissing proceedings against James Campbell, communist editor, charged with sedition, precipitated the election, has been ordered by physicians to take a complete rest for several weeks.

SENATE COMMITTEE CALLED TO MEET

Final Report on Condition of State Road Construction Fund to Be Formulated Tuesday.

The investigating committee of the state senate has been called to meet at Omaha next Tuesday to pass upon the final draft of a report. The committee comprises John W. Robbins of Omaha, George Wilkins of Emerson and W. B. Banning of Union, all members of the senate. Senator Wilkins, secretary of the committee, arrived in Lincoln Saturday from his home. He has been trying for some time to get a meeting of the committee to pass upon his report. As secretary he has been at work most of the time for more than a year without pay. He announced upon his arrival that the committee would meet in Omaha next Tuesday, possibly at Senator Robbins' office.

The report prepared by Senator Wilkins deals with the condition of the road construction fund and the question of a deficit alleged by Governor Bryan to exist in that fund. The nature of the report has not been divulged, but it is rumored that if it shows any deficit it will be small compared with the different amounts predicted by Governor Bryan at different times.

The investigating committee has filed no claim for expenses or salary altho the senate authorized payment of expenses out of funds of the departments investigated. A claim for $2,000 or $3,000 for expneses and possibly per diem for time spent by members of the committee may be presented to the next legislature.

The committee's report was expected prior to the primary election in April but did not materialize. Recently Secretary Wilkins said it would be completed before the November election. Following that announcement Governor Bryan publicly demanded a report from the committee. He said the report could show only one thing, a deficit of about $400.

The term "deficit" as used in discussions of the road construction fund, as handled by the department of public works, does not mean that there has been any misappropriation of funds. It has been alleged that the department made contracts for road work beyond the amount of funds available for road work. hTe work of road making has been performed and the public has the benefit of good roads, but the contractors in some instances have not received pay. The supreme court held that the appropriations made by the last legislature could not be drawn upon to pay for road work contracted for during the previous biennium.

TEN DAYS TO REGISTER

Many Voters Remain Who Must Visit City Clerk's Office Before October 25.

Ten days remain in which approximately 8,500 voters remain to be registered if this city is to turn out it's full quota of 25,000 ballots at the general election November 4. From now until the poll books are closed October 25, an average of eight hundred must be registered each day in order that all of the voting strength of the city is turned out.

At the close of business Friday a total of 16,000 had been registered since the poll books were opened last May. 9,917 were republicans, 5,221 were democrats, 218 progressive and 110 independent.

Beginning October 20 the last week of registration the office of the city clerk on the second floor of the city hall will be opened each night between 7 and 9 p. m. to handle the registrants not of the last week.

During the coming week, on Wednesday and Thursday nights there will be open for the convenience of registrants between 7 and 9 p. m.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Dear Mary I am one of your constent readers of your column. I thought I would come to you for some advice.

I have been going with a fellow for six months now.

And my folks do not approve of our coresponidance and want me to quit him. They have said I cannot see him any more and I and he do not want to quit going together he says he loves me but sometimes I don't think he does.

I have asked him to quite drinking and when we first started to going together he quite drinking and gambling until I went with another fellow and then he started again we were split up for over a month at one time but we always went back to each other but now here it is now.

I cannot let him come to our house to see me but I always have to go up town or to some of my friends place to see him and the folks most generaly find it out. I always hat to slip around and to with some one they don't want me to I am sixteen and am not very silly about any other boys but only this one guy.

Last nite I told him what he would say if I should say that he would have to either quit me or the whiskie and his rough ways and he said he would not quite me but for me not to ask him not to do it. We are supposed to get married in Dec but I don't know what to do.

He says he loves me but he don't always act like it toward me How could I find out? Should I marry him? and should I slip out to see him? I am sixteen and he is nineteen He is not very wethie he is just a poor kid but he has been awful in caracture all of his life but he say he don't ever think he can settle down and behave himself with out me what should I do? I think I love him and know I do there is several boys I could go with steady who says they like me and care for me and even start to plan the future but I don't seem to care for them like I do him. Mamma don't care if I go with any body else but she don't want me to go with him what shall I do I can't enjoy my self when I am with out him.

I am hoping to see this in print as soon as possible I don't know what you will think of my letter but I would like to here from it as it is just like I feel.

I remain—his Peroxide Blond.

A. Haven't you learned that your parents' judgment is usually right? If they oppose your going with the young man there must be a good reason. In fact, you have told us yourself, what it is. Any young man who drinks or is "awful in caracture" and refuses to reform before marriage is not likely to make a good husband.

Besides, you are too young to be married, dear girl, or even to know what kind of a man you would like to marry. You should wait at least four years before you so much as think of it. Even then you will be curtailing your girlhood to take upon yourself the responsibilities of a home and husband.

Marry him in December? No, indeed. Make him prove to you first by good conduct for a long stretch of time that he is man enough to support and care for you.

Dear Mary Gordon: Do you know of any small family who would share their home with us this winter; or employed couple, where I could take care of their home. Our family consists of man, wife and small child. Perhaps this would help to cut down expenses of each family. We live in a furnished home and it costs quite a bit to heat and light same.—J. C.

A. I doubt the practicability of two small families trying to live together, even to save expenses. There is almost sure to be friction. However, if you were to take care of a home for some employed couple, it might work out more amicably.

I am sorry, but I know of no one, at present.

Distracted Mother: If ever your daughter needed you, it is now. Turn her out? I should say not! How can you even consider such a thing? I would treat her lovingly and kindly and help her bear it. Perhaps you could arrange to have her go away for several months. No doubt you could find her work in Lincoln or Omaha for a time.

Helpful Hints.

Slice a fresh cake or loaf of bread thru the center and serve the middle slices first. By pushing the cut slices closely together the whole will remain moist and fresh a longer time.

If baby pulls a ribbon tie string out of her booties sew the ribbon at the back of bootie and smile at her struggle to pull them out.

To save steps and lifting take a piece of board large enough to hold a pail, bore holes in the corners and insert castors. Place pail on this when you are ready to clean the floors.

String beads on fish line, as this is more durable than most other strings.

Save on measuring butter. A pound brick measures just two cups. Divided into four parts makes half cups.

Adding several drops of vinegar to frosting or candy while beating it will prevent it from becoming grainy.

If one's oven bakes too quickly turn your cookie pan upside down and bake the cookies on the bottom of the pan.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

The remains of Harry Moore, who was killed near Alliance, arrived in Lincoln, where the parents lived.

The building committee ordered the construction of one hundred feet of seats on the athletic grounds and assured the athletic board that their tenure of the grounds would not be disturbed for the season. When the time approached for the university to take that portion of the campus for other uses, probably in April, notice would be given in time to move.

J. Sterling Morton had dug out an old letter from W. J. Bryan written ten years before, in which he said he wanted the office of secretary of the state board of transportation for the money that was in it, not the honor. This was being used against him by contrasting it with a more recent letter, accepting the presidential nomination in which he said: "The people of this nation, sitting in a high court, must render judgment in the cause which greed is prosecuting."

The rush of business on the Burlington was greater at this time than during the rush of 1892, when it was greater than ever before in the history of Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Platt went to San Diego, Cal., where they expected to make their future home and open a photograph gallery.

The state federation of Woman's clubs was holding its annual meeting at York.

TO ENDORSE THE PRINCIPLES OF LAFOLLETTE and NORRIS

who are both friends of the farmer and laboring man, vote for John O. Schmidt, Farmers Candidate for Congress from the Fourth District.

Both the Republican and Democratic candidates for this office are and no doubt will be antagonistic to their work. Mr. McLaughlin never has supported them to any degree of importance. The Democratic candidate, Mr. Placek, was chairman of the Saunders County Council of Defense during the war, at which time he suppressed free speech in Saunders County and bitterly assailed both LaFollette and Norris, and does not support either of these men nor their principles today.

Mr. Schmidt took up the fight for free speech six years ago, and was elected to the State Legislature where he stood solidly for the farmer and laboring man. He will vote for LaFollette and Norris at the coming election and if elected himself pledges his support to the principles they now advocate.

Mr. Placek is engaged in the manufacture of culverts and the sale of road machinery, and is interested in large appropriations by the government. Mr. Schmidt is a farmer and devoted to the interest of agriculture.

His campaign expenses are small compared to his opponents' Do not be blinded by candidates making large campaign expenditures, but vote for

John O. Schmidt for Congress from the Fourth District.

To Whom It May Concern:

As a member of the Farmers Union Legislative Committee I want to inform our members that John O. Schmidt served the union in an official capacity and supports all the Farmers Union measures in the 37th session of the Nebraska legislature.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel. There's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a dark brown taste, a bad breath, a dull, "rotten, no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and kindred complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.—Adv.

BORAH DENIES STATEMENT

Declares He Did Not Allude to Coolidge as "Greatest Man in Political History."

BOISE, Ida., Oct. 11 — Senator William E. Borah, in his much discussed speech at Idaho Falls last Tuesday night did not characterize Mr. Coolidge as "the greatest man in political history" but he did commend him for his consistency in his policies of economy, the Idaho senator told the United Press today.

"I said at that time—and I have the stenographic report of my address before me—that bills which he (the president) as a mere politician would have signed, he vetoed because he proposed to stand between the people of this country and those who were attempting to make unjust and unnecessary demands upon the people.

"I then referred to the fact that he vetoed the postal employes bill but made no other reference to the president," Borarh said.

Senator Borah said he planned to leave for Chicago Sunday night to make arrangements for the meeting of the senate campaign expenditures committee.

PLANE SMASHES IN RIVER

U. S. N. Racing Seaplane FTW Carries Pilot Beneath, But He Extricates Self.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Flying at a speed estimated to have been in excess of 150 miles an hour, the U. S. N. racing seaplane F-2W today fell 100 feet into the Delaware river and was completely wrecked.

Lieut A. W. Gorten, the pilot, who was carried beneath the water, extricated himself from the wreckage, swam to the surface and was picked up by a crew of a tug.

At the hospital of the Philadelphia navy yard, physicians said he was badly hurt but had escaped fatal injury.

WHERE MISS DANDELION GETS HER NAME.

"OH, you beautiful, golden blossom!" Murielee cried as she tumbled in the meadow grass beside the bright golden dandelion. "How beautiful you are in the sun-light!"

"Glad to hear you say that," said Miss Dandelion, waving her golden head in the gentle breeze. "Only a few seconds ago, the gardener was out here and spying me, ran into the barn for his mower. He couldn't see any beauty in my golden bonnet. But life is such a pleasant thing, why worry?"

"I guess it's a good thing you don't worry," laughed Murielee, "I guess the reason Danny Gardener thinks if he don't cut you down now you'll bring all your relatives and camp in his garden next Summer."

"And so I will," laughed Miss Dandelion good naturedly. "We don't bear the name of 'Lion' for nothing That's one thing you'll find amongst my relatives. We dandelions never say, 'Die.' Why, the cook can come out and snip off my leaves to use for greens and before very long I'll send up more leaves. And pretty soon now you'll find this bright yellow head turned to snowy white and——"

"I know it," laughed Murielee, "That's why I'm not going to let Danny Gardener cut you down either. I love you just as much when your head is white as I do when it's golden and besides I want you to tell me how many years it will be before I am married."

"Well, of all things," laughed Miss Dandelion gayly, "I never heard of that before. How can I do that?"

"Why, every time I have to blow to take away your white fluffy ball adds one more year for me to wait," laughed Murielee.

"But Miss Dandelion, did you get your queer name because you are really and truly strong and Lion-hearted?"

"Gracious me, no," chuckled Miss Dandelion. "That makes me laugh.

"That Makes Me Laugh."

"Certainly not. See how jagged the edges of my green leaves are? Well, they make folks think of a Lion's tooth, so that's where the name dandelion comes in.

"You see folks don't know it, but unless they dig up every bit of our roots, we go right on growing. We live and do the best we can, what else can a plant do? Even if folks don't like us, Friend Vireo does, she lines her lovely nest with our little fluffy seed-wings and——"

"Seed-wings," interrupted Murielee. "Is that how your seed get scattered?"

"Certainly it is," laughed Miss Dandelion. "At the end of every-one of those fluffy sails you'll find a tiny little seed. Why, if it wasn't for those wings or fluffy sails we Dandelions wouldn't be able to get along in America. Do you know one of those seeds can soak in the sea for days and when it finally finds dry land it will grow?"

Just then Danny Gardener came back with his mower but Murielee wouldn't let him cut down the golden headed Dandelion.

Danny Gardener laughed good-naturedly and Miss Dandelion was allowed to grace the back yard until her golden head had turned to white—a contented little blossom.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

The Excitement Katie Felt Over a Chinese Visitor.

"OH, Missis Graham, could you come by the keetchen vunce?"

Katie's voice and her dancing eyes showed excitement, and with a deprecating little nod to Dicky I followed my volatile little maid from the library. Secretly, I was much relieved at the opportunity to get away from the discussion of the changes Dicky had proposed in our schedule of living. I wished time to mull over the suspicion which had come to me that all was not right with our finances, and I certainly could not consider the question with Dicky in the offing.

"Is there anything the matter, Katie?" I asked, as I hastened my footsteps to suit her swift ones.

"No, notings," she returned; "only sometings queer. Dot laundry man he coom out here, ask to see you about vash. Now, vy he coom? I nefer see Chink leave laundry before. Vot you tink? He planning carry somebody off to Chinatown, maybe?"

"How silly, Katie!" I rejoined, with the private notation that if my little maid did not curb her fertile imagination in its favorite pastime of applying her idolized movie reels to her everyday life we sometimes should find ourselves in a most ridiculous situation of her blundering. But I felt my own curiosity stir as I entered the kitchen and saw the familiar stumpy figure of the Chinese laundryman who had done our flat work ever since we moved to the farm.

"Indeed, I Like It."

He was standing respectfully near the door, and as I entered his eyes, with the absolute lack of expression to which centuries of repression has drilled his race, looked at me fixedly and continued their stolid gaze as long as he stayed.

"How do," he said laconically as I greeted him. And then, with a quick out thrust of his hands, "You good customer. You like?"

He had put into my hands a most exquisite little round jar, which I knew from my experience of Oriental shops contained a favorite delicacy of mine—preserved ginger.

"Oh, indeed, I like it!" I exclaimed sincerely, and then hesitated for a second.

Did he mean to give it to me or was he trying to make a sale? I knew that I should mortally offend him if the former supposition were correct and I should offer him money for it. Fortunately, he came to my rescue, from accident or design, I could not tell which.

"Take it," he said, stepping back. "It yours."

I knew better than to protest and thanked him profusely.

"Sometime maybe you come down see shop?" he said hopefully. "All fix up, these in window, more things."

Katies Imagination Leaps.

"Indeed, I shall come down very soon," I said enthusiastically, for in Dicky's ridiculous parlance I am "completely bugs" about the attractive Oriental trinkets which the Chinese shops display. "Have you real Chinese tea for sale?"

He smiled, with the effect of having answered the jerk of a string.

"Very nice," he said with careful enunciation. Then, with a rather abrupt "good-by," he turned and plodded his way out of the kitchen.

Katie flew past me to the window as he closed the door.

"Vot you tink?" she queried excitedly. "Dot Chink, he coom in automobile; big vun."

"Why shouldn't he, Katie?" I asked.

"Oh, you tink eferyting always all right!" she said, tossing her head. "But you know vot I tink?"

"Tell me," I said smiling.

"I tink dis all vun great beeg bluff," she said "Vy should he coom vay out here mit nice ting for you? He no do dot for oder customers."

In obedience to a sudden, curious impulse I hurried out of the room, with an admonition to Katie to wait until I returned. In my own room, with the door closed, I took down the telephone receiver, called two women I knew were customers of the laundry, and from them, in off-hand fashion, I verified the statement of the laundryman that he had installed tea and curios in his shop. Both of them had received presents of ginger jars, and I went back to Katie triumphantly.

"You musn't let your dramatic ideas run away with you, Katie," I said smilingly. "He has started a shop and he is distributing the jars to his customers."

"I no care," she muttered stubbornly. "Dot makes eet all more bluff. Always in movies und plays Chink he do dot — feex tings so eferybody have same und vun dey vant won't suspect. I tell you, dot old devil shoost vanted chance to look you ofer so he could tell somebody else shoost how you look, den dey coom kidnap you. You see."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

The Fancy Mould Returns to Form Food for Dinners

By WANDA BARTON.

FANCY moulds are flocking back to the counters they deserted during the war and are proving of untold joy to the housewife who has been using substitutes all this time. As the holiday season approaches we are turning over thoughts of fancy holiday cookery, looking over our most treasured recipes and the use of moulds figure largely in our plans.

In this day of individual service the small moulds take precedence over the larger ones. For instance, individual plum puddings turned out of wee moulds that are the replicas of big ones, are fascinating and decorative in their own way, looking like children impersonating grown-ups.

We may run riot in choosing jelly moulds, for they come in many shapes, the most popular being melon, walnut, fish, pineapple, crown, ear of corn, wooden soldier, Mother Goose, swan, duck, star, diamond, heart, spade, club and numbers of other shapes. Moulding jellies is quite a knack and one who becomes expert can produce many attractive dishes.

Then come the various fish moulds. There is the flat fish mould, the curved fish set on edge, the lobster mould and the shell-shaped moulds. Their shapes give opportunity for many pretty ideas in garnishing. Strange to say, many of the moulds are tinned over copper foundation, but seem perfectly satisfactory to use for the purpose, though we are told not to use tin things for fish. Perhaps this may apply only to standing in a tin receptacle or cooking the fish in it. A number of the moulds that are extra heavy are used for baking the fancy fish dishes. When done they may be turned out onto a dish and are then garnished. The moulds may be gotten in three sizes, though the individuals are first favorites.

The copper ice cream moulds show a most attractive variety. Here again the individual ones show most variety, among them being special ones designed for children's parties, small fruits, vegetables, airships, kites, animals, a fascinating squirrel holding a nut in his paws, and many floral devices. These moulds are expensive, as they are double and hinged, but while the outlay is appreciable, the moulds last for a long time.

Ring moulds for border dishes, and cold pudding moulds of different varieties, are also rather expensive, but they wear indefinitely. We are advised not to use aluminum moulds for acid foods, but the tin ones are not so restricted.

Many women insist on china and glass moulds and there are a number to be had, but the design never seems to come up as clearly in them as in the metal moulds.

In chilling small individual moulds, it is a good idea to have a square pan in which six or more little moulds fit, then a shallow pan the same size that may rest on top and carry as many more. In this way room is economized in the ice box.

HER COLUMBUS DREAM

SCHOOL! Studies! Homework! And the very worst of all, history! "Oh, I wish I didn't have to study all about old Columbus, but wouldn't it be just thrilling if . . ." and away into Dreamland she drifts. The Santa Maria must have been a beautiful boat, but her Columbus is coming to discover her some day waiting on the shore of the wonderful island, with the waving palms and the blue waters and the coral reef and the golden sands, and everything just wonderful—and HE won't be in any old boat. No, sir! He'll be in an airplane!

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Hair and Brains

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

WELL, well, what a time they've been having of it in the village sewing society!

Mrs. George W. Robinson is the president of the society.

She's a bride and she hasn't lived in the village very long, but her husband was born and brought up there.

Winifred Black

His father went to the minister's wife's little classes and he used to take the girls sleigh-riding in a cutter with a wolf-skin robe lined with red-pinked flannel—for comfort—that's how old he is. And his mother had a playhouse in the corner of the school house fence before they tore the school house down and put up an atrocious something in red brick with a mansard roof and called it an improvement.

Come to think of it, the bride's grandfather-in-law lived in the town when there weren't more than two or three dozen families in it. He was one of the selectmen of the school board, seems to me I've heard, and the grandmother's recipe for pickled watermelon rind is handed down from daughter to daughter like a legacy of fine lace.

Of course everybody expected Grandson to marry one of the village girls and live as his father lived before him, in peace and comfort and a bit of boredom, nobly endured.

Mother Had Bobbed Her Hair

But Grandson went away to college and at college he met a girl, and he and the girl fell in love and the first thing Grandma knew, Grandson and the girl were engaged.

And when they were married, Grandson brought the girl back to the village to live in a nice new bungalow built California fashion, only it had a good, big furnace in the cellar—and everybody went to call on the bride and everybody liked her.

And there had been a row in the Ladies' Aid Society and there were factions in it, everyone taking sides. And when it came time to elect a new president they all agreed that it would be nice and sensible and kindly, too, to elect the bride to the office.

And she was pleased, and Husband was pleased, and Husband's grandmother, and his mother, were pleased and everything was fine.

And then the bride told one day at a meeting of the society that her mother was coming from California to visit her.

Everyone was delighted. They were crazy to see the mother and get acquainted with her, and see what new recipes she had, and everything—and Mother came.

And the bride brought her to church—and what do you think? Mother was a handsome old lady, gorgeously dressed, and she had snow-white hair—and her hair was bobbed!

Also, she wore large, dangling earrings—and she had a thumbring on the thumb of her little, fat left hand.

Nobody in the village went to sleep before 11 o'clock that night—you could have heard the buzzing from one end of the town to the other if you had just taken time to listen.

And when they met the bride down at the market ordering chops for dinner they tried to act the same as usual—but they just couldn't! And day in and day out things got worse—how could Grandson have married the daughter of a white-haired woman who bobbed her hair and wore barbaric earrings and a thumbring.

Something must be wrong with that girl, some way—with such a mother!

And then they all stopped talking about Mother, for an epidemic of diphtheria broke out in the village and nobody had any time to talk.

Who do you think whirled in and nursed five different families of children through the plague?

Brains and Heart Count

Night and day she worked, never tired, never discouraged, never cross, smiling, competent, quick, resourceful—just you try to say anything about bobbed hair in that village now, if you dare!

They even whisper that the minister's wife is thinking of bobbing her hair.

Somehow, it doesn't seem to make very much difference how you wear your hair, so long as you have the right sort of brain under it—does it?

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Beige Kasha Day Frock.

AS soon as I entered Madame's to-day I knew we were in for a busy time.

There was an air of bustle about the place, and as I was not very early myself, the first clients began to arrive soon after I had gotten in.

Seamstresses were working as fast as their busy fingers could fly, and errand girls were running to and fro.

In the middle of this Madame sent for me.

I found her in her own private office, and she soon explained what she wanted.

"A very special client of mine has come in, my dear," she said to me. "Is that the pretty woman waiting out in the salon?" I asked.

"If she has keen blue eyes and chestnut hair that is the one," Madame assured me.

I knew from this description that I was right, as I had been interested in the attractive-looking woman as soon as I saw her.

"I sent for you to ask a favor," Madame went on to explain.

I smiled in reply, for Madame knows that I am always glad to do her any favor that I can.

"I simply can't see her this morning," Madame said to me. "But her frock is ready, and I want you to go slip it on for her to see."

"I shall be delighted," I assured Madame.

"She has had her last fitting," Madame said, "but she just wants to have a last look at the frock on someone else before she has it sent home."

I hastened back to the models' room to find the frock in question, and I was truly delighted when I did find it.

Soon I had slipped into the lovely soft beige kasha model, and fastened the house up the side under its own organdie frill and adjusted the wide brown suede belt.

When I sauntered out upon the manikins' stage, the pretty client gave a pleased exclamation.

"Do come down and let me have a closer look at you," she said in her soft lovely voice.

I did as she asked.

"It is beautifully tailored," she exclaimed, fingering the finely pressed pleats that marked the right side.

"I hadn't seen this frock until just now," I told her. "And I think without a doubt it's one of the most attractive I've seen go out of Madame's shop this season."

The pretty client seemed delighted. She said:

"I am crazy about that wide, brown suede belt."

"They are very smart-looking, I think," I assured her.

Then she asked me to go to the milliners' room with her to see if her brown hatter's plush hat was ready.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, OCTOBER 12—13.

Sunday's horoscope promises advancement and progress to all affairs of the church, the clergy and charitable enterprises, since their ruling planet, Jupiter, is in auspicious place. But superiors should be treated with proper respect, especially in those in their employment.

Those whose birthday it is should have a prosperous and progressive year, but those in the employment of others should be careful.

A child born on this day should be ambitious, jovial and talented in original lines.

Monday's astrological chart holds some real, good figures. It would be well to safeguard all affairs, business and domestic with more than usual care. Do not risk sickness, attend to the health and be methodical.

Those whose birthday it is should attend quietly to business according, hange and protecting the money, the health and the household.

A child born on this day will be quick and clever, but may encounter many difficulties in life.

YOUR HEALTH

Help Blood to the Brain When Anyone Has Fainted

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND.

THERE is no more common emergency to deal with than the care of a person who has fainted. It is a never-ending wonder to me that the average person is so witless when it comes to the treatment of fainting. Everybody has witnessed the emergency. Everybody has been taught what should be done. But it is seldom that anyone does what should be done.

By common consent when someone has fainted or is otherwise afflicted or hurt, most of the by-standers crowd as close as they can get and do nothing but look on. They wait for the doctor or for anybody else who will take command. They seem utterly helpless.

Perhaps it usually is a good thing that they recognize their helplessness. When they do venture to do something it is usually the wrong thing.

What happens to one who falls in a faint? The heart, that faithful pump which has never failed to work, suddenly stops beating. It does not completely stop of course, or death would occur. But the pulsations become so feeble that the blood just barely flows.

When you try to find the pulse at the wrist, it cannot be felt at all Even if you were to listen with your ear on the chest you might not be able to hear the feeble beatings of the heart.

The immediate effect of this failure of heart action is the drainage of blood away from the brain. Unless the brain is continually and abundantly supplied with a cleansing and stimulating supply of pure blood, the nerve centres which control all the vital functions, lose their power. If this condition continues even for a fraction of an hour, there may be disastrous results.

You can see that the important thing to do when the heart is working so feebly, is to keep all the blood possible in the brain. To this end you want gravity to assist all it can. Certainly that cannot be accomplished by having the victim sit up or stand up. It cannot be accomplished by having him lie down with his head and shoulders in somebody's lap.

The thing to do is to have the patient lie flat on the ground, or better still, to lie on a sofa or stretcher, the foot of which can be elevated. By getting the head low, the blood easily reaches the brain.

Keep the crowd away, because lots of air is essential. For the same reason a tight neckband or tight clothing which impairs the breathing, should be loosened or removed.

Do not try to force water or a stimulant down the throat of an unconscious person. It may pass into the larynx and drown the victim. When he is able to swallow, give water or a gentle stimulant.

Remember and apply these suggestions the next time, they will help a fainting friend.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—Is it proper to entertain young men later than eleven o'clock?

2.—Is seventeen years too young for a girl to think about marriage?

3.—Is it improper for a girl to stand and talk to a young man on the street?

4.—Is there any harm in flirting with a young man?

THREE ATTRACTIVE FLAPPERS.

THREE ATTRACTIVE FLAPPERS: 1.—The hour must be decided by your parents. But judging by your age, I should say that eleven o'clock was late enough.

2.—Seventeen years is most certainly too early an age at which to be thinking of marriage. A girl of seventeen has hardly attained her full physical growth and certainly not her full mental stature. Marriage is the business of a lifetime and certainly should not be entered into until maturity has been reached.

3.—If a girl happens to meet a young man on the street, it is perfectly proper for her to stand and talk with him. However, some girls make a practice of standing around the streets and talking to young men for hours on end. That is most improper.

4.—Most decidedly. It is not only bad for your reputation but also exposes you to unpleasant advances.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

In our home we have a guest room.

I have a young man friend from another city who is going to visit me in a short while. He will not be here more than a day or two. Wouldn't it be all right for me to ask him to stay at my home for the night?

THANK YOU.

THANK YOU: It wouldn't be quite proper for you to ask him, but if your parents or brother extend the invitation, it will be in good form.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am to be married next month and am coming to you for some advice.

My fiancee is to be married in a tailored suit with accessories of grey. Will this be the correct attire for a home wedding? Is it correct for me to buy her flowers?

HAYSLIP.

HAYSLIP: The costume is perfectly correct for an informal home wedding. And by all means buy her some flowers. A corsage of roses and lily-of-the-valley or orchids would be appropriate.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

SCHUERMAN USED A GUN

NO REGRET OVER KILLING, BUT FEELS DISGRACE.

Charges Reinmiller With Breaking Up His Home and Started Out to Do Just What He Did.

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 10.—A complaint charging Ed Schuerman, wealthy farmer of the DeWitt vicinity, with first degree murder, is to be filed in county court within the next few days, according to County Attorney Harold Mattoon. Schuerman, who shot and killed George Reinmiller, DeWitt laborer, shortly after 6:30 o'clock this morning, is in the county jail here and evidenced no remorse over his deed with the exception that he feels keenly the sorrow brought to his children, the eldest of whom is twenty years.

In a statement made by Schuerman to the county attorney today, he charged that Reinmiller had broken up his home. He asserts that he had warned Reinmiller to stay away from his home, that he had also warned Reinmiller's folks and had also told his wife that if Reinmiller did not keep away from his home and his wife, he would kill him.

He asserted that coming home Tuesday he saw Reinmiller in the cornfield near his house and that the latter ducked his head. He then determined to kill Reinmiller and made his plans accordingly. He stated that he quarreled with his wife Thursday night, and that she remained upstairs and he slept downstairs.

He arose early and taking his shotgun, told his wife he was going to kill Reinmiller. She begged him not to, but he left the house, drove in his automobile to the scene of the tragedy, south of DeWitt, just over the line in Gage county, fired three times at Reinmiller, two of the charges from the gun taking effect.

Reinmiller was on his way to work accompanied by his foreman, Charles Ross, of the Rock Island railroad. After the killing Schuerman endeavored to commit suicide by jumping in the Blue river north of DeWitt, but failing in this, drove to Wilber, where he gave himself up to Sheriff Greer, who called Sheriff Sailing and turned the prisoner over to the Gage county sheriff.

The village of DeWitt is wrought up over the tragedy, both Reinmiller and Schuerman being held in high esteem.

Reinmiller was the main support of his widowed mother, and was looked upon as a quiet sort of a fellow. Schuerman, who, by hard work, amassed a small fortune, was also highly esteemed.

MERE MENTION.

GIRL KILLED IN FALL FROM TREE

Jeanette Miller, Nine Years of Age, Dies Soon After Dropping Onto a Sharp Knife.

FREMONT, Neb., Oct. 10.—Trying to urge her dog to follow her up the trunk of a fallen tree, little Jeanette Miller, nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, Fremont, was nearly instantly killed about 5:30 Friday afternoon when she fell to the ground below and a paring knife with which she was playing, severed her jugular vein.

Jeanette and several other children of the neighborhood were playing about the ruins of the tree that was blown down in a recent storm. The girl had clambered into the branches about eight feet from the ground and was tugging at the lead rope on her little dog, pleading with him to follow. She had evidently been using the paring knife taken from the kitchen to cut away limbs on the tree. As she slipped and fell, the sharp blade of the knife severed the jugular vein.

The child struggled toward the Miller home while her cries and those of her playmates attracted the mother. She had gone about two rods when she fell in a heap. The crazed mother carried the limp form to the home of a neighbor where attempts were made to stop the flow of blood. When doctors, immediately summoned, arrived on the scene, the child had succumbed. Efforts were being made tonight to reach the father believed to be on a Union Pacific supply car. He is employed in the roadmaster's department at the local Union Pacific yards.

ASKS THAT VOTER GIVE EXPRESSION

Adam McMullen Urges People to Decide Whether or Not the Tourist Should Pay for Use of Roads.

SUPERIOR, Neb., Oct. 10.—Adam McMullen, head of the republican state ticket, is urging the people to express themselves as to whether or not the tourists who wear down the highways of Nebraska shall help to maintain them.

The G. O. P. nominee for governor, addressing a large crowd here Friday night, said that approximately 100,000 tourists travel over Nebraska roads in a year. These tourists pay nothing for the use of the roads while in three-fourths of the states a gasoline tax pulls from the tourist his proportionate share of the cost of road maintenance.

He said that the duty rests upon the voter to determine whether or not the gasoline tax will prove to be of benefit. He urged careful study and expression in order that the legislature may be advised as to public sentiment.

SAYS CHRISTIANITY IS ALL THAT CAN SAVE IT.

More than six hundred young people attended the students' banquet held under the auspices of the Topeka branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society at St. Paul Methodist church at 6:30 Friday evening. "There is no hope for India in any religion on the field, neither Hinduism, Mohammedanism, nor Brahminism, except in the religion of Jesus Christ. I am there because I do not believe anything can save India besides Christianity."

Great students of political economy in India, such as Ghandi and Tagore, with whom Dr. Jones is very well acquainted, say that India never will be free economically or socially until some force uproots all the evils that have been laid in religion for centuries past. All India seeking salvation from these evils. "I cannot help being a missionary because I know what the Christian religion can do for those people."

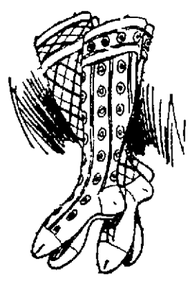
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Copyright 1924 by C. E. Wry

Calves Are In Clover

When the Prince of Wales crossed to the United States, he did not, like so many of his fellow-passengers, appear in knickers on shipboard, because knickers do not belong there. The place for them is upon the golf links and in the country. It was a little lesson in dress deportment taught with authority and without offence, for the spreading carelessness about when and where to wear knickers has even led them to the dance floor in suburban clubs. A dance is a formal function and to wear knickers is not only a transgression of fitness, but a violation of courtliness due to "the sex whose presence civilizes ours."



Such emphatic stress is continually laid upon the right place to wear the right thing, because this is one-and-indivisible with good form, and good form is the foundation of correct style. Lord Chesterfield, that renowned practitioner of the social graces symbolized by his name, wrote to his son that manners must adorn fashions. Where and when to wear it are just as important as what to wear.

The trend of style in wool stockings for the sports is steadily toward brighter colors and combinations like those employed in sweaters—blue, gray, Lovat (green), brown-and-white, Oxford-and-white, heather intermixtures, blue-gray, French blue, Royal blue, and canary and orange shades blended with darker tints. Heavy, medium and light weights are procurable, according to your fancy.

The two predominating effects in wool stockings are those reproduced here, that is, patterns formed by circular or diamond designs either single or double or triple. The turnover tops may be plain, or to match the leg, or different from it.

To be satisfactory in fit and wear, wool stockings must be handfashioned, which gives them greater elasticity, and made of fine Scotch wool, cashmere or camel's hair. You are well advised to have several pairs, as the strain on them is considerable and they lose their flexibility unless allowed an occasional rest. Knitted garters to go with the stockings are now also finished with brightly colored side tassels.

HOLD MORE THAN HALF

FARMERS HAVE SHIPPED 45 PER CENT OF WHEAT.

Sharp Fall in Price the Last Few Days Not Regarded as Indicating Any Real Recession in Price.

During the last six days 1,066 cars of wheat have been handled on the Omaha market, nearly all of it coming from Nebraska points. In the opinion of grain men about 45 per cent of the crop is now out of the hands of the farmer but he has been favored this year by the fact that the high prices have been paid while he still had wheat for sale. Altho the market has dropped about seven cents in the last two days, this is regarded as only a temporary recession, and that the price will go up again soon.

The railroads have been handling the heavy shipments of the last few weeks without any trouble. The railway commission has had but two or three complaints of inability to get cars. In each case it was due to a too hard and fast application of the rule of the railroads that if the shipment is going off its own rails, it will not haul the grain in its own cars. Instead foreign cars are used.

It so happened in these cases that there were no foreign cars at hand, altho there were line cars available. In each case the commission ordered the railroad to use its own cars when no foreign cars were likely to be available in a short time.

The Burlington and Union Pacific are handling the greater part of the business at present. Grain men say that the shipments so far have been by farmers who were pressed for money and those who were satisfied with the price. At a number of stations this price has hovered between $1.20 and $1.30, dependent on distance from market.

SCHUERMAN NOT SORRY

was on his way to his work with a railway bridge crew. The farmer said he passed Rheinmiller, who was on foot with Foreman Charles Ross, and drove a half mile further on. He then turned back and driving up to the two men halted his machine.

Schuerman, who had armed himself with a repeating shotgun, leaped from his car, turning his weapon on Rheinmiller. The first shot went wild and Rheinmiller is said to have tried to protect himself behind Foreman Ross. The second shot, however struck Rheinmiller in the shoulder, hurling him to the ground. Schuerman then shot a third time, the charge taking Rheinmiller back of an ear. Death was probably immediate. Schuerman made no attempt to molest Foreman Ross.

It was after the shooting that Schuerman, so he said, drove to his home, told his wife what he had done, left his gun and then went to the river. He had determined to drown himself, he continued, but after entering the water the memory of his children haunted him until he could not force himself to add another life to the toll of the tragedy. Leaving the river he drove to Wilber to give himself up.

"My wife and I were married here in Gage county in April twenty years ago," he said. "I thought the world of her until this came up. She was a good little woman.

"I told her many times this must stop. And I warned her what I would do."

Mrs. Schuerman, during an early morning scene prior to the shooting, had pleaded with him not to kill Rheinmiller when he told her what he was going to do, he stated.

So far as residents of the vicinity would discuss the tragedy yesterday, it seemed that Mr. Schuerman has always been accorded a high place in the regard of his home community. Saying that "this is the first trouble," or rather that he had "never had trouble before," he himself declared that "in all his life he had never paid out a cent for the law." This and other references were not made by him with any obvious desire to gain "sympathy."

He did not express remorse over the slaying, altho he spoke with regret over the situation which he said had led up to it.

Rheinmiller, Mr. Schuerman said, had worked for him at the farm some years ago, later finding other employment. Rheinmiller was unmarried and lived with his mother at DeWitt.

Speaking of incidents which had preceded the shooting, he said on one occasion he had risen in the night, finding Rheinmiller in his home and that the latter had fled thru a window after they had wrestled about a room occupied by Mrs. Schuerman. He also referred to other incidents of this character, which—according to his statement—had occurred during the past year or more.

Spillman was written upon the progressive party ticket at the primary. He received 34 votse while Harry B. Fleharty of Omaha received 15 votes. Spillman is the republican nominee and Fleharty the democratic nominee.

Congressman Morehead, like Spillman, did not have his name on the progressive ticket. His name was written in by 53 voters while only one vote was written in for Willis G. Sear.

Congressman Howard was nominated in a similar way because 148 progressives wrote his name upon the ballot.

To make these nominations binding the candidates are obliged to file an acceptance with the secretary of state. This was done by all whose nominations are now questioned.

DEFEAT FOR LAFOLLETTE

THAT IS WHAT DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE FORESEES.

Claims Davis Is Winning Votes in Doubtful States and Will Be Elected When the Test Comes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The democratic national committee made this statement this morning:

"If the election were held today, John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan would carry New Mexico," Arthur Soligman, chairman of the state central committee, reported today to Chairman Lincoln Dixon of western democratic headquarters. And by November 4, Mr. Soligman said, the sentiment for Davis and Bryan will be so overwhelming that the finish of the runners will be Davis a strong first, LaFollette and Coolidge a poor third.

"With the ever-widening split in the republican ranks, growing rapidly, especially in the western states," said Mr. Soligman, "and the democratic cohesion and strength is becoming more and more evident of course, Coolidge has never had any real strength in either New Mexico, Arizona, or Colorado, due to the break of so many thousands of votes to LaFollette.

"These thousands, mostly from the ranks of labor, have finally seen that LaFollette's cause being hopeless, and the first flush of the movement having paled, they must naturally turn to Davis in realizing the utter hopelessness of a LaFollette victory they have studied the labor record of John W. Davis and they have found that it entirely suits them.

"Even if labor were not opposed to the Coolidge labor record, it realizes that Coolidge could do nothing for them in the way of legislation with a republican congress torn as it has been and will continue to be with dissension and strife between the two republican congressional factions which are portrayed by Norris and Smoot.

"Labor also knows that the promises LaFollette makes could not be fulfilled because there could be no such thing as a LaFollette congress.

"Labor knows that if Davis is elected he will have democratic congress to work with him in shaping remedial labor legislation. The labor vote in my state this year will total 8,000.

"Another big reason for the Davis strength in the west is that the west likes a fighter and does not like a side-stepper. The Coolidge silence is taken as an indication that he is no fighter, that his managers are fearful of letting him speak his mind. This one fact is making many votes for Davis and Bryan.

"Then there are approximately 24,00 ex-soldiers who will vote in November. They all remember how Coolidge acted and still feels about the bonus bill. They have decided views on the looting of the veterans' bureau during the regime of the republican administrations appointee, Colonel Forbes. All these things will be in their minds when they go to the polls in November.

"An important factor this year in New Mexico is the fact that approximately 30,000 women who have not heretofore voted will go to the polls next month. These women are chiefly those who were opposed to the suffrage amendment but who have since realized it is their duty to vote. A careful check shows us that nearly all of these women will vote the democratic ticket.

"The situation is much the same in Colorado and Arizona. Conditions are particularly good in the former state, where we have a very strong state ticket, well balanced, that pleases especially the farmer, the ex-soldier and labor."

NORRIS PRAISES SIMMONS

Says He Made Splendid Record in First Term—Scores Sugar Tariff Fight.

SIDNEY, Neb., Oct. 11.—Senator Norris and Congressman Simmons addressed a large audience in Sidney last night on the political problems. Senator Norris declared he was not much of a partisan. In his twenty-two years record he had tried his best to do what he thought honestly was right and always followed his own judgment. He paid respects to the old secret party caucus and said it was no longer held in Washington. He said he was coming into the campaign without apologies for past acts and if returned expected to continue to perform as before. Partisanship is one of the worst evils of government.

He favored world peace and gave as causes of wars as greed of monarchs for more power and land and the almighty dollar. He favors arbitration or any honest plan that will do away with war. He urged voters to demand the passage of the Norris bill to change date of inauguration of national officers. He declared himself ready to vote for an amendment to take away part of the power of supreme court to declare laws passed by congress unconstitutional by a four to five vote. He said it should be at least seven to two. He took occasion to pay a high compliment to Congressman Simmons of this district and said that he had observed Simmons' work in the house and that he had been convinced that he was capable of doing his own thinking and did not take orders from anyone. Without question Simmons had made a splendid record first term and was entitled to reelection.

The best friend the sugar trust had in Nebraska is the man who says he will reduce the tariff on sugar. By so doing he proposes to reduce the price the farmer receives for his beets. There are fewer farmers from Fremont to the Wyoming line who are entitled to prosperity. This man proposes to reduce the price of labor in the fields and factories, thereby crippling the production in America, and placing the consumer at the mercy of the producer in Cuba. The consumer paid as high as $30 per hundred in 1920, when the Underwood low tariff law was in effect.

SENATOR HOWELL HOLDS TO VIEWS

Nothing Has Happened, He Says, to Change Original Belief That Coolidge Well in Lead in Nebraska.

United States Senator R. B. Howell, declared in Lincoln Saturday that in his opinion, President Coolidge is well in the lead in Nebraska.

"At the end of a speaking tour covering two weeks, nothing has occurred to change my original impression," said the senator. "My conclusion is that here and elsewhere the fight is between the two major parties. I have gathered certain data in Nebraska from ballots and direct contact with the people. Nowhere have I found evidence which should alter my belief that Nebraska is for President Coolidge."

Senator Howell has been impressed by the great interest taken in the subject of agriculture, a subject which he covers with thoroness. He finds that the feeling respecting crops is one of satisfaction. In his Nebraska speeches, the senator talks affirmatively of his party candidates. He speaks highly of Adam McMullen, nominee for governor.

He spoke at the Temple theater at 11 a. m., at a meeting held under the auspices of the University Republican club and addressed an afternoon meeting at the Lindell hotel held under the auspices of Lincoln Republican Women's club.

Senator Howell's address at the Temple was the first of a series of political talks before students of the University of Nebraska. Not being a day when students are on the campus to attend classes, less than one hundred heard the address.

Mr. Howell spoke of the educational value of political addresses and advised students to listen to all speakers with special knowledge of governmental affairs. "Good politics is good business" he said. "In this campaign," he said, "only two candidates are in the running." He explained that Mr. Davis had the solid south with its 39 votes, and that Mr. Coolidge had New England and Pennsylvania, besides much other territory in which he was bound to have the preference. "To make your vote count, you must vote for one of these candidates."

Much of the address was devoted to an analysis of the farm conditions. Mr. Howell declared the farmers would not get full justice until they organize. "There are 6,500,000 farmers in the country", he said. "If these farmers and their wives would organize an agrarian league such as exist in other countries, with branches in the various districts, justice could be enforced."

Mr. Howell told of various methods thru which the price of farm products could be stabilized. Personally he favored a sales tax of 50 cents per bushel on grain consumed in the United States, but with no guarantee fixing price for that sold abroad.

Senator Howell's itinerary:

Monday, October 13, Grant 2 p. m., night meeting at Ogallala.

Tuesday, October 14, night meeting at Kearney.

Wednesday, October 15, Lowell, 10:30 a. m., Minden 2 p. m., night meeting at Wilcox.

Thursday, October 16, Benkelman 2 p. m., night meeting at Trenton.

Friday, October 17, McCook 2 p. m., night meeting at Lincoln Inn.

Saturday, October 18, Fairbury City, 2 p. m., night meeting at Auditorium.

SHENANDOAH TO FLY ON

REACHES SAN DIEGO BUT WILL CONTINUE.

Last Leg of Outward Journey to Be Made to Lakeview, Wash.—Great Air Cruiser Hours Overdue.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Damage to the Shenandoah caused when the rear gondola bumped the ground in landing in a heavy wind here last night will delay the departure of the great dirigible for Camp Lewis, Wash., at least until tomorrow.

Commander Zachary Lansdowne announced that it the damage to the big ship could not be repaired in time to start early tomorrow, the departure would be delayed until Monday.

Two metal girders were sprung and several yards of fabric ripped off the outer envelope during the landing.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Damage to the Shenandoah incurred while landing at North Island last night may delay the northern flight of the big dirigible several days, naval air station officials announced early today.

In settling to rest after her gruelling battle with the weather, the tail of the giant craft touched the ground first, forcing several struts of the rear control car in to the covering of the rigid envelop.

Mechanics were examining the dirigible this morning and expected to be able to announce the extent of the damage later in the day.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 11.—Safe after the most thrilling flight ever made by a Zeppelin, the giant navy dirigible Shenandoah swung gracefully at her mooring mast at Rockwell field here today, ready to take off for Lakeview, Wash., on the last leg of her outward ourney, between 9 a. m. and noon.

Hours overdue, the great air cruiser, after battling thru gales over the jagged mountain ranges of southern California and all but being destroyed, reached her mooring mast at 11:30 last night (Pacific coast time.)

A huge crowd, which had waited with increasing anxiety for eight hours, had thinned as the dirigible was sighted over San Diego shortly before 11 o'clock.

There was a lusty cheer from those who had waited, hoping against hope that the skill of her navigators and the reliability of the great ship had brought her safely thru the raging winds of the mountains.

BAD LIGHT THE CAUSE

lights were alleged to have been to blame for the tragedy two and one-half miles east of Gretna Friday evening when the speedster plunged off the L-L-D highway, crushing the skull of Karl Mailand and slightly injuring Jesse Fetterman. The car had been loaned by Mr. Dover to the boys. Russell Hunter was arrested Monday night by Officer Schappaugh and held in the city jail until the next morning. Judge E. B. Chappell was considerably wrought up over the fact that the car had been driven about town after dark without lights. He delivered a scorching lecture on such practices. After that the car was repaired, it is said, and the lights fixed.

QUESTIONS LAW VALIDITY

York Man Maintains That He Has Right to Buy Liquor for His Own Use.

Attorney General Spillman tells the supreme court in a brief filed Saturday that there is no legal ground for the contetnion made by Paul B. Walker that if the state prohibitory law does not permit a man to purchase liquor for his own use it is unconstitutional.

Walker is a resident of York. On May 18, he was tackled by a police officer after he got out of his automobile, and a small flask of liquor found on his person. He was convicted of law violation and his automobile ordered confiscated. He has appealed to the supreme court.

The contention of defendant is that the arrest was illegal because the officers had no search warrant, but the attorney general says the supreme court has already settled that matter. Walker says that as he did not have the liquor for any unlawful use he was guilty of no law infraction, that a man has a right to buy liquor for his own use. The attorney general says that this would imply that he had a right to buy wheer he pleases and transport it in his automobile. He adds that it is a matter for a jury to say from all the evidence whether a man has liquor for an unlawful purpose, and that having found so in this case that settles that part of it.

CIVILIANS IN REVOLT

INFURIATED AT RUTHLESS TACTICS OF LU.

Severe Rioting in Streets as General's Troops Attempt to Restore Order—Scores Are Injured.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11.—Infuriated Chinese civilians today rebelled against the ruthless tactics of Gen. Lu Yung Hsiang, war lord of Chekiang and master of Shanghai for many months.

There was severe rioting in the streets as Lu's troops attempted to restore order. Scores were injured.

There were mutterings of an unrising against Lu all during the night and at daybreak a great crowd gathered in front of the temple in the Chinese quarter, urging the people to take control of the city into their own hands and expel the war lord responsible for their woes.

Lu was accused of prolonging his war with Gen. Chi Hsieh Yuan, master of Kiangsu, without "sense or reason" and subjecting the civilian population to all manner of indignities.

Crowds surged thru the streets, armed with sticks and stones, to attack Lu's troops who have been withstanding the attacks of Chi's Chekiang armies for many weeks.

Order finally was restored after the soldiers had charged with drawn sabers.

TRYING FOR BIGGER GAME

shipments were interstate the railway commission was without jurisdiction.

The disadvantage that the elevator company operates results in compelling it to handle, in competition with the elevator on the Missouri Pacific, at a loss or at no profit because the latter can bid as much as 5 cents a bushel more.

The commission was loth to take action because of the fact that at most the business available is small, altho it holds that the fact that the shipments are interstate does not divest it of jurisdiction and because of the possibility that a movement to secure a joint rate thru Superior may be secured that will clear up the situation for the southern territory. It will act later if that fails.

LIKES THE NEW STADIUM

York Republican: "The wisdom of the people of the Nebraska in providing a stadium at the state university where the lovers of manly sport can be accommodated with convenience and comfort was justified Saturday when twenty thousand or more people massed in that wonderful structure to see the first game in the Cornhusker's series. Such a magnificent structure, combining size, utility and massive beauty, raises sport to a higher plane and increases interest in it. From this time forward the skill of Nebraska athletes will be watched by more eyes, their fortunes will be followed with deeper interest, and cleaner sports and fairer sportsmen will be the certain result."

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Washington yelled, shouted, whooped and cheered all night long but still had a hoarse and raspy voice this morning to claim to the world that their Washington Senators were the best ball team in the world.

When the Senators, champions of the American league and a national idol, beat the New York Giants, the champions of the National league, in the seventh and decisive game of the series yesterday, the town turned into a college burg filled with crazy freshmen.

Nothing at New London after a Yale-Harvard boat race, nothing at New Haven or Cambridge after a Yale-Harvard game, or nothing else, any place, could have approached the fervor and intensity of Washington's celebration last night when the first baseball championship of the world was knocked into the city by the rookie bat of Earl McNeely, a young man from the Pacific coast.

Washington has a lot of good reasons to be proud of the new baseball champions of the world. They beat the New York Giants in one of the toughest series that was ever played. They out-gamed them, they out-spirited them and they out played them.

The winning of a world's championship for the first time didn't bring as much joy to the heart of Washington as did the fact that grand old Walter Johnson got the official credit for winning the seventh and decisive game of the greatest series on record.

Buck Harris Hero..

Johnson will go on the books as the winner of the game but there was Buck Harris who hit a homer and who knocked in two other runs with a long single, and there was Muddy Ruel who hit a double in the hard twelfth inning and scored on another two base hit by McNeely.

Along with all the other throbs in one of the greatest games of ball ever played, was the tragic spectacle of Hank Gowdy, the hero of the 1924 series, one of the heroes of the 1917-1918 series with the A. E. F. and the most popular player in the National league, losing the series and all that dough—$2,000 each—for the Giants. Hank stepped into his mask, which he had hurled to the baseline when he went after Muddy Ruel's foul in the last inning. He kicked the thing away an then stepped into it again and stumbled, dropping the ball. Ruel, with his life at bat prolonged by Hank's error, doubled and came in with the run that made the master mind of that well known John McGraw look not so good some more.

Ruel's punch in the pinch was just as important as McNeely's and just as popular with the Washington fans. Ruel is one of the idols here and the city wept with him when he went through six games of the series without getting a hit.

There was no outstanding hero in the series, but there were flocks of deserving the D. S. C. of baseball.

Foremost perhaps was twenty-eight-year-old Buck Harris, who out-thought, out-figured and outsmarted that well known master mind of baseball, John McGraw.

Harris also handled a team thru three games without the services of Roger Peckinpaugh, a star shortstop, back-bone of the team on offense and defense.

Three Games By Own Efforts

Harris, furthermore, practically won three games by his own efforts and labor. He is not a great hitter, if you judge by the batting averages, but he hit every time he came to the plate in a pinch during the series. He scored one run yesterday with a homer and drove in two others with a single in the toughest pinch that a playing manager could face.

There were other candidates for the crown of a hero. George Mogridge had a part in pitching two winning ball games and big Tom Zachary, considered little before the series, was credited with two victories. Goose Goslin hit three home runs.

The Giants had only one outstanding player—Frankie Frisch, who pulled some of the greatest plays ever seen in a world's series.

No more popular and more deserving team ever won a world's championship and large sections of the country today were voicing the fond hope—"wish they get four more." They're a fighting ball club."

No finer compliment could be paid any baseball team than to have them admitted as a clean, fighting ball club.

That's the Senators!

Kearney Defeats Central College

KEARNEY, Neb., Oct. 10.—In a one-sided exhibition of football here Friday afternoon the Kearney state teachers college humbled the Central City college by the shutout route, 12 to 0.

Kearney began scoring in the first quarter, while Macully carried the ball across the line for a touchdown in the first two minutes of play in the second period, Macully got away, thru the line for forty-eight yards and the second touchdown. Panek failed to kick goal in both cases.

Central City was dangerous at but one point in the game. In the last two minutes they became in possession of the ball on Kearney's twenty-five yard line and carried the oval for their first down of the battle. The whistle ended the game with the visitors on their third down and 12 yards from the coveted line. Kearney made first downs seventeen times.

ATHLETE DIES

RALPH WOOD.

Ralph Wood, perhaps the most famous basketball player ever developed at the University of Illinois, died in Denver, October 8, after five years of illness. Wood, with his twin brother, played a sensational game for Illinois in 1914 and 1915. He is survived by a widow and two children. He was twenty-nine years old. His home was in Chicago.—P. & A.

Harvard Defeats Clay Center Hi

HARVARD, Neb., Oct. 11.—Harvard gave Coach "Ed" Furman, of the local high school, the "royal palm" Friday night after his team of ultra-green youngsters had swept the heavy Clay Center squad before them by a 38 to 0 count. After having been defeated by Clay Center last year for the first time in the long athletic history of the two schools, the huge crowd of rooters joined in sharing Furman's happiness Friday night.

Walter Yost, last year's guard, playing fullback, was the main cog in the attack, altho Harold Brenneman, half-back, scored most of the points.

LINCOLN WALLOPS HAVELOCK ELEVEN

Red and Black Gridsters Have Field Day at Shoptown Expense—Coach Browne Uses Many Substitutes.

Coach Browne's Lincoln high huskies inaugurated their home grid schedule by smothering Havelock high with an avalanche of touchdowns, the final count standing 74 to 0, in a hectic battle waged at the Red and Black oval Friday afternoon.

It was a Lincoln game from whistle to whistle; not once did the Shoptowners even threaten to score on the Red and Black. Captain Teal, Corrick, Weyand and McBride penetrated the Havelock line at will and the second string backfield with Witte and Kahler in the leading roles ran the ends for long gains.

Lincoln presented a strong defense, the Red and Black forwards breaking thru and spilling the Havelock backs before they could get started. George Miller, Shoptown star, had no chance to get away. He was a marked man. Havelock went to pieces in the final period when Miller was forced to leave the game after making a hard tackle.

Lincoln's reserve backs, Kahler and Witte, were the stars in the final period. Both men made long gains, skirting the Havelock ends for ten and twelve yards at each attempt

First Quarter.

Captain Straka won the toss for Havelock and elected to defend the north goal. On straight line smashes, with Corrick and McBride carrying the oval, Lincoln carried the ball to the Havelock 8 yard line. The Shoptown line braced and took the ball on downs within the shadow of the goal posts. Teal returned Miller's punt to the Shoptown 33 yard line. McBride made 13 yards through the line and Teal added 12 more yards a moment later. McBride plunged six yards for the first Lincoln touchdown. Teal drop kicked the try for point. Score: Lincoln 7, Havelock 0.

Straka fumbled McBride's kick-off. Lesh recovering the ball for Lincoln. Teal and Corrick alternated carrying the ball, the Lincoln fullback finally going over for a touchdown on a smash through center Captain Teal again drop kicked the try for point. Score: Lincoln 14, Havelock 0.

Lincoln kicked to Havelock but on the first play Warga fumbled and Tindell recovered for Lincoln on the Havelock 12 yard line. Teal, on a double pass behind the line, carried the ball over for Lincoln's third touchdown. Teal again drop kicking the try for point. The quarter ended with Coach Browne's men in the lead, 21 to 0.

Second Quarter.

Several substitutes were inserted in the Lincoln lineup at the start of the second period. By using straight football, the Red and Black backs carried the ball down the field, Weyand going over for a touchdown. Lincoln attempted a forward pass on the try for point but the ball was grounded by Warga. Score: Lincoln 27, Havelock 0.

The rest of the period was played in Havelock territory but the Lincoln reserves lacked the punch to score on the visitors and the half ended Lincoln 27, Havelock 0.

Third Quarter.

Between the halves the Lincoln high school band paraded the field and the cheer leaders led the crowd in the high school yells. The students went wild when it was announced that Washington had won the world series.

McBride kicked off for Lincoln, but Havelock punted on the third down and the Red and Black put the ball in play on the Shoptown 37-yard line. After failing to gain on two attempts, coupled with a 5-yard loss for offside, Corrick punted 23 yards out of bounds. Miller kicked on the third down and Coach Browne's men put the oval in play in the center of the field.

Weyand circled Havelock's right end for 20 yards and McBride added 3 more. A forward pass, Weyand to Corrick, was good for 28 yards. The ball was on Havelock's 11 yard line. McBride made 4 and on the next play Corrick plunged over the goal line for 7 yards and a touchdown. McBride place kicked the try for point. Score: Lincoln 34, Havelock 0.

Havelock fumbled the kick-off, Lincoln recovering on the Shoptown 20 yard line. Corrick, after a series of plays, finally lugged the ball across for Lincoln's sixth touchdown. A forward pass, Corrick to Buechner across the goal line gave Lincoln the try for point. Score: Lincoln 47, Havelock 0.

Witte kicked off for Lincoln, Straka returning the ball to Havelock's 25 yard mark. A pass Warga to Miller netted 8 yards. Miller punted 30 yards a moment later to Weyand who returned 7. Witte ran around the Havelock right end for 23 yards on the next play Weyand made 11 and another first down. Corrick added 2 and the period ended Score: Lincoln 41, Havelock 0.

Fourth Quarter.

Corrick added 4 and Weyand went over for a touchdown. Teal drop kicked the try for point. Score: Lincoln 48, Havelock 0.

Witte kicked off to Straka who made no return. Kahler intercepted a Havelock pass and ran 20 yards to a touchdown. Witte missed the try for point on an attempted place kick. Score: Lincoln 54, Havelock 0.

Witte kicked 35 yards to Sommers who returned 2. Kahler again intercepted a Shoptown pass and ran for a touchdown. Witte place kicked the try for point. Score: Lincoln 61, Havelock 0.

Havelock fumbled shortly after the next kick-off, Lincoln recovering. Witte on two runs carried the oval over for Lincoln's tenth touchdown. Witte missed goal. Score: Lincoln 67, Havelock 0.

Witte kicked off to Straka who fumbled. Sommers recovered for Havelock. Straka punted on the second down. Witte and Foss carried the ball to the Shoptown 7-yard line and Foss went over for another touchdown. Witte place-kicked the try for point. Final: Lincoln 74, Havelock 0. The lineups.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Grain futures were weak to lower on the board of trade close today. Corn displayed irregularity.

Wheat was sharply lower altho a final spurt of short covering rallied values from the extreme dip. Front in the Argentine was among the attributes for some of the late short covering.

Corn was erratic. A statement by James A. Patten, leading corn trader, that he was still bullish on December corn gave that option a firm and unchanged finish. December was advanced on cash buying while July sagged sharply on a decrease in feeder demand.

Shorts rallied oats slightly from the low point but weakness in wheat depressed sentiment.

Provisions was higher.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: We expect a revival of export demand on any further dip.

Stein Alstrin: A further decline is likely in all grains.

Jackson Bros. & Co.: We would take advantage of all breaks to make purchases.

Thomson McKinnon: We believe the buying side on reactions is advisable.

Chicago Tribune: More bearish news and opinions were given out on wheat last night than for a long time. No interest that has not been in sympathy with the advance of late was emphatically bearish, claiming there was a lull in the export demand as they were unable to sell any wheat abroad. The resellers were said to be offering wheat 2 to 3c under replacement cost and other conditions were given as the reason for the proposition. Those who have been long wheat and right the greater part of the last four months express the belief that all surplus wheat in the world's exporting countries will be wanted this season at good prices. In certain quarters, however, it is said the market would be put in better shape by a further break of a few cents. Those who have been persistently bullish on corn still believe in higher prices. The black in wheat and the low eastern demand were responsible for the last selling. There was good buying in rye. The buying was generally credited to a local operator who has been bullish for some time. There was good demand for cash lard, with removal of hedges against the business and a belief that the loan to Germany would improve the export demand. Export sales: Wheat, 500,000 to 1,000,000 bushels; rye, 300,000 to 400,000 bushels.

Herald-Examiner: There has been distinct evidence for several days that Europe has let up in its active buying of American grain. The primary movement of oats continued large but shipments are increasing.

Journal of Commerce: Cash grain yesterday gained on the futures.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Further reaction is likely, but it will greatly improve the technical position in all grains.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—After a fairly large volume of liquidation in the first hour, prices steadied, largely on short covering and became quieter as the last hour progressed. Many issues like General Electric, U. S. Steel, American Can and Woolworth reached resistance levels, and around 244 sales were considerable buying of General Electric.

Outside of selling by a few weakly margined accounts, dealings were largely of a professional nature, with approximately 2½ per cent originating from the trading element both on and off the floor. As a matter of fact, commission houses are doing comparatively little business and do not expect to do very much prior to the election.

The market closed irregular.

HONOR MISSION PADRE

MONTEREY, Cal., Oct. 11.—One hundred and forty years ago a beloved padre, Father Junipero Serra, died at Mission San Carlos del Carmelo, near here, having finished the work that has earned for him in the opinion of the modern world the title of "Father of the Missions."

For many years the burial place of the great padre was a mystery. Some thought that he had been spirited away to a sepulcher in the old world. Others insisted that he lay at rest near the scene of his lavors.

Finally his body was found and removed to the sepulcher beneath the chancel of Mission San Carlos del Carmelo. A simple white cross standing among the ruins of the old mission marks where his body was found.

It is in honor of the great parde, and to commemorate the 140th anniversary of his death, that the curtains of time are swinging back today to reveal the character of the Monterey peninsula as it was when Father Serra and his priests were at the zenith of their power.

The entire Monterey peninsula has been preparing for months to make of the Juniper Serra festival a spectacle to rank with the leading annually performed classics of the world, ranking next to the Mission Play and the Passion play of the old world in imporiance.

The resources of this section, in money and talent, both of which are plentiful, have been drawn upon to insure the success of the festival. A great religious ceremony is the principal event of tomorrow, and during the week there will be presented two pageants, "Rose of the Rancho," based on Richard Walton Tully's play of the same name, and "Fray Junipero Serra," arranged by Rev. Father Ramon M. Mestres.

Spanish fiestas, a rodeo, barbecues and an international Spanish dancing contest will be other features of the week.

Father Mestres' play will get to the life of the missions during their ascendancy following the arrival of Father Serra and his brother padres. The missions of those days were the centers of religious, social and industrial life

Woods Brothers Buy Corn Land While Market Is at Low Point

By Glenn Griswold in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

The Woods Brothers are buying corn land. This may not be particularly significant to folks who do not know the Woods Brothers. To those who do it is highly important.

The Woods Brothers, having headquarters in Lincoln, Neb., are much the largest and probably the most successful operators in corn land in the middle west. They have several millions of dollars tied up in corn land, principally in Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. It has ever been their policy to buy corn land when it was cheap, when farmers were in the dumps and when the agricultural barometer was at the bottom of the glass.

They have not purchased corn land, except a few stray pieces, for several years. Just now they have men traveling thru the corn country, picking up distressed land wherever it is to be had at exceptional values. Strangely enough, they find no land for sale at a price that would seem to be indicated by the lugubrious reports of farm conditions coming out of the west.

Their theory is that farm lands, like all values, will fluctuate rather widely between periods of affluence and poverty, but that real corn land can never be much, if any, cheaper than it is today and should, in the not distant future, show a great enhancement in value.

This is about the only country that has land and climate and all contributory conditions necessary to the successful raising of corn, and virtually all the good corn land is in cultivation today.

In the meantime, commercial uses not dreamed of ten years ago are being found for corn and the rate at which refineries, such as the Corn Products company, are consuming corn for the production of syrups, corn oil, starch and all its by-products suggests to the Woods Brothers that demand for the product will soon have sufficient advantage over supply to establish prices materially higher than anything ever called normal heretofore.

Then, too, the Woods Brothers not only believe that farmers are in somewhat better position today than is usually reported, but they are confident agriculture must continue to improve materially for some time.

It may be that the Woods Brothers have made some bad business guesses. The presumption is that they have, but the average and aggregate of their guesses must have been good. When Col. Fred M. Woods left central Illinois for Nebraska he owed $13,000. His four sons—Mark, Frank, George and Albert—were about the age when boys start looking for their first jobs. They sold newspapers, milked cows and Albert turned to pedagogy, but the others have been Woods brothers since boyhood.

Gradually they came to be recognized as foremost among traders in farm lands, and on that reputation they have built a fortune of many millions of dollars. They own some of the leading banks between Chicago and the coast, department stores, wholesale houses, coal mines, reclamation companies, mills and factories. One of their playthings is a 20,000-acre cattle ranch and hunting preserve in northwestern Iowa. Yet the foundation of all this affluence and the explanation of it is the good business the Woods Brothers have made as to farm land value.

The Woods Brothers do not operate an acre of the farm lands they own. It is their theory that a farm is seldom profitable unless the farmer lives on it, has a proprietary or partnership interest in it and a son or two to help with the field work and the chores.

Their farm land is all leased, either on a rental basis or a share basis or both, and they rent no land unless the farmer has at least one grown son. They have found that they cannot expect to earn more than 5 per cent net to them after all charges. Any additional profit comes incidentally from an appreciation in land values.

There are many barometers of agricultural conditions, but one of the best is a truthful answer to the question, "Are the Woods Brothers buying farm lands?"

DAVIS GOES INTO INDIANA

Sure He Has at Least as Good a Chance as Others of Carrying Grain Belt.

ABOARD JOHN W. DAVIS TRAIN EN ROUTE TO INDIANA, Oct. 11.—John W. Davis opened his final speaking tour in the middle west today, confident, as his train sped into Indiana, that he has at least as good a chance as the other candidates of carrying a majority of the great states of the grain belt.

Davis considers Indiana one of the most hotly contested of all the states and will concentrate on the Hoosier voters in an almost continuous series of speeches today. He made a number of rear platform talks and was scheduled for major addresses at Richmond early in the afternoon and Indianapolis tonight.

Davis' present tour will continue practically until election week. He will spend Sunday in Indianapolis and Monday will enter a speaking tour carrying him into Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Men and Things

Mr LaFollette has raised a great outcry that the republicans are trying to buy the election When a person buys something somebody else must sell it Votes are all that count in an election. Therefore, it must be votes that are to be bought. But a party does not buy voters that it already has, and it must make its purchases among those devoted to another party. As we have the assurance of Mr. LaFollette that he now has enough to elect him president it must be LaFollette votes that he charges the republicans are about to buy. As the man who sells his vote is as venal as the one who buys it, the charge amounts to this, that there are a lot of venal fellows among the LaFollette following. A southerner who led a political revolt in Virginia and predicted a victory for himself once thus explained his defeat: "Damn, 'em, suh, they bought us."

Whether you like it or not, the on fact evident is that if you do not want congress to have the task of selecting the next president there is only one certain way to avoid it. That is to vote for Coolidge. No great sacrifice of principle is necessary to do that. You may be obsessed by the importance of this, that or the other issue, but take the word of those who have been through many political contests that it is mostly a sham battle as proved by the disappearance from one campaign of what was regarded as highly important in the one just before it. If you get men in office who are cool-headed, possessed of common sense, honesty and insistent on reducing the cost of government you have got about the most that you can expect as the result of politics.

The radical campaign orators do a lot of talking about special privilege. If one were to believe a tenth of what they say about how congress and the legislature sell out the people regularly he would find it difficult, even then, to explain the possession by so many persons of homes, automobiles, bank accounts and other evidences of prosperity. If we are so regularly and systematically plundered, how does it come we have so much left? There is only one answer, we are not being plundered. In fact LaFollette, the chief among the blatters, himself proves he does not believe it. He is championing in one breath an amendment to the constitution that would make congress superior to the supreme court in matters of legislation, and congress is the instrument thru which he says, in his other breath, we are being plundered. He doesn't really believe it; he merely wants a bigger office than he now has.

The tremendous number of boys under twenty-one who are engaged in various kinds of criminal enterprises is an indictment of parenthood. Does it mean that fathers and mothers are falling down on their jobs? Some there be who cry out that it is the result of the interference of the state with the control of children by fathers and mothers. The state says that it will accept only the most conclusive of reasons for permitting parents to put children to work at less than a certain age. The result is a lot of idleness for children, and it is the opinion of a constantly increasing number of persons that it is this idleness that breeds the crime at which we are holding up our hands in horror. Ought we not to resurvey this question and find out the facts?

The editor of the Nation who was in our midst a few days ago delivering a few addresses is the best illustration of what we mean by the term intellectual snobbery. He said, as we got his meaning, that the two old parties were led by either stupid or venal men, and that the only hope of political deliverance lay in the third party. He did not venture these as opinions but as facts. They are not facts You need only con over the leadership of the two great parties to convince yourself that the charge is untrue. An intellectual snob is a man who not only pretends to know more truth than anybody else, but who insists on his own infallibility and that those who disagree with him are numbskulls.

The Fosdick incident has been overplayed by the newspapers. The Presbyterians were well within their rights when they asked the Baptist who was occupying a Presbyterian pulpit to become a Presbyterian or preach elsewhere. That is to say, that as long as the protestant churches are so insistent upon dividing themselves into groups along certain beliefs, no Baptist has a vested right to indefinitely occupy a Presbyterian pulpit. Besides we are suspicious of these preachers who are so intellectual that they cannot accept all there is of rational christianity, but who want to embroider it to suit their fancy.

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd)

5 Minutes to Answer This

Smith, Jones and Brown were great friends. After Brown's wife died, his niece kept house for him. Smith was also a widower and lived with his daughter. When Jones got married, he and his wife suggested that they all live together. Each one of the party (male and female) was to contribute $25 on the first of the month for household expenses, and what remained at the end of the month was to be equally divided The first month's expenses were $92. When the remainder was distributed each received an even number of dollars without fractions. How much money did each receive and why?
